WIFE FIGHTS BODY SALE BY HUSBAND

Spouse of Alameda County Prisoner Serving Year For Passing Bad Checks Says She Will Endure Privation

Mother of Two Babies Spurns Charity; Praises Husband; Lives in Loft of Crumbling Old Barn

SPECIAL BY WIRE TO THE TRIBUNE

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 11.—"My husband must not sell his body He must not I wrote him and told him not to. The babies and I will get along some way until he gets out. But he mustn't sell his body"

Lying with her week-old baby beside her in the loft of an old barn, the lower part of which is occupied by her sister, mother and father, Mrs. Clyde H. Wilcox sobbed her protest against the proposal of her husband, sentenced to a year in the Alameda county jail for passing worthless checks, that he sell his body to the University of California in order to support his family during his incarceration.

The girl, 20 years old and of Spanish descent, appeared not to mind the heat as the sun beat down upon the saggy shingled roof, nor the ants and flies that swarmed over everything. Except for the iron bed on which she lay there was no furniture in the room save a broken stool and a little stand

DECLARES LOVE FOR DERELICT SPOUSE.

Her thoughts were apparently several hundred miles away where "Clyde" whose real name is said to be Robert Frazee, was looking longly at the fading sunshine as it filtered through the bars of his cell

"Clyde is a good boy," she said "I love him and he loves me We were married, you know, in 1922 when he was a soldier at March Field. A few days after we were married they transferred him to Honolulu and I didn't see him for eight months. Then, one day he came back with an honorable discharge.

"He got a job, and we lived here with my parents. We didn't have much, but oh, we were so happy Then early last June he lost his job at the cement plant He looked everywhere but he couldn't find work here My parents could not support us, and I needed attention. He cashed three checks for small amounts, signing any name that he could think of. I didn't know where the money came from then but I do now.

FAIL TO FIND JOBS ON TRIP TO BERKELEY.

"We had bought an autom bile on time, and had about $150 yet to pay. We didn't know that it was illegal to take it away, and as he couldn't find work here, he and I, the baby and a friend of his, Bert Plant, took the machine and drove to Berkeley, where Plant's wife is a telephone operator

"We thought the boys could find work there, but they couldn't. Then they cashed more checks, 33 during the week, I believe Then one night the police came to our hotel room and arrested the boys. The Berkeley and Oakland policemen were very nice to us

"I don't want to be pitied and I don't want charity Clyde made a mistake, but he did it for me, and I feel I am just as much to blame as he is I don't know what I will do to support myself and the two children I know my parents can't support us I can wait until he gets out. But the days will be so long. I do wish it was all over and Clyde could be with me again."

Ann Luther Sighs As Court Ordeal Ends

BY UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11. — With the ordeal of cross-examination finally ending during the morning session of court today, Ann Luther sighed audibly as she was turned over to her own attorneys for redirect examination in her $100,000 breach of contract suit against "Millionaire Jack" White.

For two days, Paul Schenck, attorney for White, had subjected her to a gruelling cross-examination in connection with her claims that White had agreed to produce four moving pictures at a cost of $100,000 each, in which she was to be starred. Schenck wrung from her admissions that she had had an illicit love affair with A. E. Lewis, a young broker, and pried deeply into other intimate details of her life.

Recount Sought By Defeated Candidate

TULSA, Okla, Aug. 11. — Congressman E. B. Howard, apparently defeated for the Democratic senatorial nomination by former Governor J. C. Walton in last Tuesday's primary, announced today that he would immediately file a petition for a recount with the state supreme court.

Man Forced to Rule Which Child Is Most Ungodly; Decides on Son

Wife's Will Leaves Christian Endeavor Pin to One Most in Need.

To be required to declare publicly which of his four children was "farthest away from Christ," in order to carry out the terms of his deceased wife's will, was the obligation placed on David Stewart of Hayward, in the probate department of the superior court today.

Stewart named his son Ralph. The selection was followed by eulogies of the youth by Stewart and his attorney, both declaring that the question involved was a spiritual one and not one of morals.

The selection was required under the terms of the will, for the awarding of the Christian Endeavor pin which had belonged to Mrs. Stewart. In her will she asked that this pin should be given to that one of the four children who, in the father's opinion, was the "farthest away from Christ."

The father announced his decision today before Superior Judge E. C. Robinson, who was presiding in the probate court. Ralph Stewart was then given the pin by order of the court, and the remainder of the estate was divided among the four children and the father. The property consisted principally of jewelry and Hayward real estate, to a total value of about $9000.

DAVIS DEMANDS EARLY CAMPAIGN

Democrat Nominee, in First Formal Political Word, Heralds Victory.

By FRASER EDWARDS, United Press Staff Correspondent.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug 11. — A sharp demand for complete and immediate organization of his campaign was the first formal political utterance of John W. Davis Democratic candidate for the presidency, in taking up the reins of party government today.

His demand was voiced at the meeting of the Democratic national committee at which Clem Shaver was elected the new chairman

The Democratic candidate made it plain that he is confident victory will come with the end of the campaign. He said the people will decide in favor of the Democrats if they are "fully informed," and that it was the duty of the committee to provide this education Davis said.

"I am a profound believer not only in the right, but in the power of the people to govern themselves.

"We have staked all that we are and have as a nation on the belief that they will decide right provided they are sufficiently informed The chief thing is that they shall be brought to know the facts It is your duty and mine to see that the public are fully informed concerning those things that will influence their decision in November. I promise you to spare no effort to this end.

"According to established precedent, I believe I am permitted to suggest to you the name of a chairman for your committee. I have determined to offer for your consideration the name of Clem L. Shaver of Fairmont, in this state

"He served for eight years as chairman of the Democratic state executive committee of this state and as such brought us the first Democratic governor in 20 years. He served with distinction for six years as a member of the state legislature and therefore knows something of the slings and arrows of a political candidacy. I beg, therefore, to commend him to you as one worthy of our entire confidence."

There was a continual blare of bands here today as the hours moved on toward night, when Davis will accept formally and officially the nomination of his party

Everything is in readiness for the big celebration. A string of events was scheduled for the afternoon, following the meeting of the national committee, including a luncheon in Davis' honor by the committee after its session and a monster parade through the downtown streets.

FRENCH PLAN TO QUIT RUHR IN 11 MONTHS

Two Allied Premiers Bargain With Germans Over Term For Troops to Stay After Dawes Plan Is Launched

Work of London Conference Is Completed Except For Decision on Evacuation of Occupied Territory

By DAVID M. CHURCH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Premier Edouard Herriot today proposed to the allied reparations conference that the Franco-Belgian forces evacuate the Ruhr within eleven months after the Dawes plan is put into execution, providing the Germans carry out their obligations under the plan.

Evacuation would be gradual as the Dawes plan becomes effective, the last of the troops being out of the Ruhr within eleven months.

Germans countered with a request that evacuation be carried out within six months.

Except for settlement of the Ruhr question, the conference has practically completed its work. It now remains only to put committee reports, which have been adopted by the council of fourteen, into the form of a protocol and to secure the allied and German signatures.

The council of fourteen decided to leave the Ruhr issue to direct negotiations among the French, Belgians and Germans. The British foreign office this afternoon changed its views regarding the proposed allied war debt conference. Reversing Saturday's attitude of opposition, the foreign office announced that Premier MacDonald recognizes that the questions of reparations and debts are closely allied and will not oppose a conference. It is believed, however, that such a conference would not be held until January. It is not expected that the United States will participate Another important forward step was taken when the French and Germans agreed to grant amnesty to all prisoners arrested in the Ruhr and Rhineland except those in which violent death

By LLOYD ALLEN, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug 11.—Agreement was reached today on all committee reports to the international conference,

Premier Herriot returned to the conference with a mandate from his country to make the best bargain he could in exchange for military evacuation of the Ruhr.

Foreign Minister Stresemann conferred with Premier Herriot at the Hyde Park hotel regarding evacuation and mutual amnesty of political prisoners in the Ruhr.

Later, Stresemann and Chancellor Marx were to confer with Premier Theunis at the Carlton hotel.

Herriot's flying trip to Paris Saturday resulted in unanimous action by the French cabinet council, approving the premier's report of progress at London and authorizing him to consent to evacuation in exchange for reparations concessions.

Before the "big fourteen" convened, the chiefs of the French Belgian and Italian delegation met at the prime minister's residence Herriot explained the results of his Paris trip.

World Girdlers Refuse to Consider Abandonment of Tour; 3 Plans Open to Complete Globe Circling

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

REYKJAVIK, Aug. 11.—The supply ship Gertrude Rusk, whose imprisonment in an ice pack off Angmagsalik on the east coast of Greenland, has been an important factor in the delaying continuation of the round-the-world flight of the army officers, broke free from the ice at 4 o'clock this morning, Major Clarence Crumrine today reported to the aviators. The Gertrude Rusk was able to resume its attempt to reach Angmagsalik to prepare at that place a base for the next lap of the round the world flight.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 11.—The United States cruiser Raleigh, exploring the east coast of Greenland in search of a landing place for the American army round-the-world fliers, today reported to Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder that she was in a dense fog ninety miles east-southeast of Angmagsalik and that she had encountered many floating ice hummocks.

While the vessel was attempting to gain the sea clear of ice, a hummock touched it slightly, damaging the starboard forward propeller, according to the report to the admiral.

Little can be done until the fog lifts which it is hoped will be in time to allow the two scout planes which the Raleigh is carrying to begin a search for a landing place on the coast line this afternoon

FLIERS PIN FAITH TO DANISH SUPPLY SHIP.

In a statement this morning, Admiral Magruder said it was doubtful if Angmagsalik could be used as a base by the scout planes which are being carried by the cruisers Raleigh and Richmond to explore the coast.

A plan had been considered whereby these planes would carry fuel for the round-the-world planes over the Angmangsalik ice fields.

Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Erik H Nelson believe that the hope of providing a base at Angmangsalik or at some point further south on the east coast of Greenland, depends on the Danish supply ship, Gertrude Rask.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 11.—The next leg of the American world flight will not be attempted until all courses of action have been considered from every point of view and the best possible decision under the circumstances is reached.

This announcement is contained in an official statement issued on board the cruiser Richmond, flagship of the squadron of the American war vessels which is patrolling the course of the fliers.

There is no question of calling off the flight because of the ice conditions, the statement says, and in the opinion of Admiral Magruder, in command of the naval squadron, the flight will be completed successfully, barring possible accidents to the planes or unforeseen adverse weather.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 11.—Powder, machinery and buildings valued at $28,000,000 war-time prices, and at more than $2,000,000 at present valuation, were destroyed in a fire that swept clean a forty-acre tract in the heart of the Old Hickory Powder plant at Jacksonville, Tenn.

King Insists That Prince of Wales Use His Highest Title on U. S. Trip

British Ruler Vetoes Incognito as Discourteous; Will Visit Coolidges.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—One of the highest compliments in diplomatic usage—a strictly private luncheon with the executive family—is planned for the Prince of Wales upon his arrival in United States for the international polo matches at Meadowbrook, says the Washington Post today, adding that it understands the royal visitor will reach New York August 30.

The prince's call at the White House was decided upon, the Post relates, after King George had vetoed a proposal that he come to the United States incognito, as Lord Renfrew. The king held that international courtesy required use of the prince's highest title on a visit to the United States, even though it might be only a pleasure trip, and this necessitated arrangements for him to pay his respects formally to the President.

The privacy of the luncheon, one of the few functions of its kind in American history, is attributed not only to the mourning of the executive family for Calvin Coolidge Jr., but a desire to return similar courtesies extended by the king and queen recently to Secretary and Mrs. Hughes and to Secretary Mellon and his daughter. Afterwards, says the Post, members of the cabinet and their wives may be invited to the White House, in a strictly informal manner, to welcome the prince.

The prince will be met at New York, the Post says, by the British ambassador, Sir Esme Howard; J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state, in a semi-official capacity, and Major Oscar N. Solbert, the President's junior aide and former military attache at the American embassy in London, as the personal and unofficial representative of President Coolidge.

The executive has also detailed Major Silbert to act as personal aide to the prince during his stay in the United States.

After the matches, which are scheduled to end September 14, the prince is expected to leave for his ranch in Alberta.

STATE OPENS ATTACK ON LOEB DOCTOR

Crowe Forces Defense Alienist to Admit Authorities Dispute Facts He Cites As Mitigations For Murder

Slayers Grin as Prosecutor and Pychiatrist Wrangle Over Difference Between Blushes on Boys' Cheeks

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The state today attacked the theory of functional disorders of the endocrine glands set up by the defense in its plea for mitigation of punishment of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., for kidnaping and murdering Robert Franks.

The idea of functional disorders of the endocrine glands was built up by direct testimony of Dr. H. S. Hulbert of Chicago, fourth of the defense alienists, who used the X-ray pictures to illustrate what he termed various glandular disorders, noting the thyroid, pineal, pituitary and adrenials.

DOCTOR GRILLED ADMITS GLAND IS MYSTERY.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, upon cross examination asked Dr. Hulbert for information as to the function of the pineal gland and, told it regulated the balance of the other endocrine glands, asked if it were not a fact that medical men as a group know practically nothing of the function of the pineal gland and some question it being a gland at all. He received a affirmative reply.

Crowe sought to impeach the testimony of Dr. Hulbert by bringing out that the mental pathologist had been "too busy" to make some of his numerous tests and had relied on the words of others. The witness testified that he never had in "many" murder cases, made such extensive examinations and tests as in the present case.

It was indicated that the defense would rest its case soon after the completion of the testimony of Dr. Hulbert and that late this afternoon the state would begin presentation of its long list of rebuttal witnesses, including four alienists.

MURDER ATTRIBUTED DIRECTLY TO GLAND.

"Could Loeb have committed the homicide if not for his diseased mental condition?" asked Bachrach, defense attorney, asked Dr. Hulbert.

"He could not," replied Dr Hulbert.

"What other criminals in murder cases did you ever examine?" was Crowe's first question to the witness. The defense objected, but Crowe was sustained.

"A great many," Dr. Hulbert replied "eight since the world war."

"I have never heard it defined," said Dr. Hulbert when the prosecutor sought a definiton of a "normal person"

Early he began to fence with Crowe, assisted by objections from the defense

NOT QUALIFIED IN CHINESE NORMALITY.

"What is normal in China?" asked Crowe and the defense objected that Dr. Hulbert had not qualified as an expert on Chinese normality.

"Normal life in China would not be normal in Chicago?" asked by Crowe, brought the reply.

"I presume not. There is nothing in the physical examination of a man which would indicate a man is a criminal"

"Did you find anything in Loeb's physical examination to indicate he was a criminal or abnormal mentally?" asked Crowe.

"Yes, the fact he injured his leg in a baseball game in jail would indicate he was a criminal," re-

EX-MAYOR DEFIES ATTORNEY IN ROW

Threat to Throw Former Official Out of Council Follows Quarrel.

SAN LEANDRO, Aug. 11.—Threats to throw former Mayor Allen E. Pelton out of the room in the city hall where the trustees were meeting today as a board of equalization are said to have been made by City Attorney Williams in the course of a heated session. Some time ago the trustees had an intensive survey made by James E. Stafford, an expert One of the protestants at today's meeting pointed out that the total assessed valuation was formerly only $4,800,000, but that according to Stanford's survey, it was about $11,000,000

When City Attorney E. H. Williams was explaining that the tax levy in the past had been inadequate, former Mayor Pelton strove to answer him. Williams is said to have threatened to have Pelton thrown out. Pelton defied Williams to throw him out. No attempt was made to eject him.

The meeting was adjourned until tomorrow. The protestants were instructed to bring in written protests against the increased assessment.

ANTI-NEGRO PROTEST HIT BY COOLIDGE

Colored Man's Right to Be Candidate For Congress Is Right Guaranteed by Constitution, President Says.

Service of 500,000 Colored Men and Boy in World War Cited as Proof of Patriotism of This Race.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Replying to a letter of protest against the candidacy of a negro in New York state for congress, President Coolidge today expressed "amazement" at the suggestion that he intervene, and reaffirmed his intention of administering the constitution which, he pointed out, "guarantees equal rights to all our citizens without discrimination on account of race or color."

The letter, made public at the White House, was written to the president by Charles H. Gardner, of Fort Hamilton, N. Y. Gardner had sent a newspaper clipping concerning the candidacy of a negro for congressman.

"Leaving out of consideration the manifest impropriety of the president intruding himself in a local contest for nomination," Coolidge wrote in reply, "I am amazed to receive such a letter.

COLORED CITIZENS FOUGHT FOR U. S.

"During the war 500,000 colored men and boys were called up under the draft, not one of whom sought to evade it. They took their places wherever assigned in defense of the nation of which they are just as truly citizens as are any others. The suggestion of denying any measure of their full political rights to such a great group of our population as the colored people is one which, however it might be received in some other quarters, could not possibly be permitted by any one who feels a responsibility for living up to the traditions and maintaining the principles of the Republican party.

"Our constitution guarantees equal rights to all our citizens, without discrimination on account of race or color. I have taken my oath to support that constitution. It is the source of your rights and my rights. I propose to regard it and administer it, as the source of the rights of all people, whatever their belief or race. A colored man is precisely as much entitled to submit his candidacy in a party primary as is any other citizen. The decision must be made by the constituents to whom he offers himself and by nobody else.

QUOTES ROOSEVELT TO SUPPORT STAND.

"You have suggested that in some fashion I should bring influence to bear to prevent the possibility of a colored man being nominated for congress. In reply, I quote my great predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt:

"* * * —I cannot consent to take the position that the door of hope—the door of opportunity is to be shut upon any man, no matter how worthy, purely upon the ground of race or color.'"

MAD BULL KILLS DEMOCRAT CHIEF

South Dakota Nominee For Governor Gored to Death on Farm.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Aug. 11.—Andrew S. Anderson, Democratic nominee for governor of South Dakota, was gored to death early today at his farm near Beresford, S. D., thirty miles south of Sioux Falls, in Clay county.

Telephoned reports to Frank Olds, county coroner, indicated that Anderson had gone to the pasture to take care of the stock when one of the bulls in his herd became enraged and attacked him.

Anderson came into politics in 1910 when he won a seat in the legislature from Clay county. In 1912 he was re-elected and again in 1914, defeating the latter year Carl Gunderson, now Republican gubernatorial nominee, whom he would have opposed for the governorship in November.

He was nominated by the Democrats in 1916 as lieutenant governor and polled more votes than any of his running mates. He declined the Democratic nomination for governor in 1922, but accepted it this year.

LEOPOLD'S LOVE OF MOTHER CITED AS MORAL DEFECT

"Uncritical Adoration" Mentioned as Instance of Low Mentality.

plied the doctor, half humorously.

Seriously the doctor replied, after the question again was asked, that a physical examination could not reveal mental abnormal or criminalistic tendencies.

"Then you have come to your conclusion from what these boys and their friends have told you?" pursued the prosecutor.

"No," was the answer. "I reached my conclusion also from laboratory investigations."

HATRED OF SUGAR CITED AS DEFECT.

Hulbert said that Leopold's intolerance to sugar indicated the pituitary gland does not function normally.

Dr. Hulbert said that none of the tests of Leopold and Loeb were made by him alone, nor by any one man. Crowe was insistent that Dr Hulbert name names. Judge Caverly gently reproved the prosecutor for urging after Dr. Hulbert grew red-faced from insisting he could detail the names of all assistants although the tests were made under his personal supervision.

"If these boys wanted to cheat you on these tests couldn't they have done so?" asked Crowe.

"No, I am brighter than they are," replied Dr. Hulbert.

"Do you mean intellectually or mentally?" asked Crowe.

"Both," replied the specialist.

Leopold and Loeb grinned broadly.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB GRIN AT ALIENIST.

Crowe tried to bring out that the placing of a finger on a wet ray plate might indicate a condition not present in the individual photographed.

"How did you estimate the emotional age of Leopold?" asked the state's attorney.

Dr. Hulbert said that Leopold's emotional age of less than the average boy of 12 was arrived at because of his morbid fear of physical pain, because his emotions of awe and reverence were shallow and not matured, had no love affairs with any appreciative degree of emotional feeling, and his attitude towards his family.

"Lack of awe and reverence is true of all atheists, isn't it?" asked Cowe. "If there is no belief in God and the hereafter you don't expect them to show awe and reverence? Wouldn't you expect ridicule?"

"UNCRITICAL ADORATION OF MOTHER MENTIONED.

"Leopold had a child-like uncritical adoration of his mother, and then his aunt, who assumed the mother's place in the household upon her death, and a childish attitude toward his father as a person too distant to be regarded as a confidante, but whose wishes were law in the household. He never made a pal of his father or older brothers."

"Do you regard it as childish for a boy to have an uncritical love for his mother?" asked Crowe.

"I did not mean that," said Dr. Hulbert. "When she was alive he had a childish attitude toward her. He confused the picture of the Madonna with his mother."

Crowe questioned the doctor about a letter written to Loeb two years ago by his former nurse, and sought to bring from the witness his opinion as to whether the nurse was addressing Loeb as one emotionally matured. The cross examination became an argument, interspersed with defense objections and rulings by Judge Caverly.

LOEB'S SEX LIFE DISCUSSION CUT.

The cross examination then turned to a discussion of Loeb's sex life. The matter was dropped, however, after Dr. Hulbert said he regarded his eleven page discussion of the matter in his report as a "brief discussion."

As Crowe and Dr. Hulbert sparred over questions and answers as to Loeb's emotions and life, the defendant hung over Leopold's shoulder and the two whispered and smiled. More than five minutes was taken up with trying to ascribe the difference between a "blush on Loeb's cheek and a similar glow on that of Leopold."

Low carbon dioxide in the blood, sky condition and some other matters not readily understood by the layman were referred to by the witness in his cross examination of the actor-blushing.

REFUSES TO POINT OUT ONE DEFECT.

"Will you point out one physical defect in either defendant which accounts for this crime?" asked Crowe.

"No sir," responded Dr. Hulbert.

"What is the function of the pineal gland?" asked the prosecutor.

"It regulates the balance of other endocrine glands," said the witness.

"Is that all?" pursued the prosecutor.

"That is enough, I'll stand on that," replied the witness.

"How do you know what age the pineal gland should calcify?" was the next question.

"By statements of eminent authors," was the response.

Then ensued a long wrangle over whether the witness could state specifically at what age the pineal gland should have calcified in either of the defendants.

Crowe veered from pursuit of the subject and asked the doctor if he thought that he had answered the state's questions as readily as he had those of the defense. Dr. Hulbert denied that he wilfully had withheld anything.

LEOPOLD WANTED TO MURDER GIRL.

Leopold wanted to kidnap a little girl and kill her in preference to selecting young Franks, Hulbert testified this afternoon. Dr. Hulbert said Leopold's idea sprang from phantasy in which he pictured the attacking of French girls by German soldiers.

Eastbay Pigeon Racers Missing In Test Flight

More than 36 hours overdue, ninety pigeons released early last Saturday in Salem, Ore., for a 700-mile race to this city, have yet to arrive here and officials of the race are unable to account for the long delay in the completion of the flight.

Dennis Murphy, secretary of the Pacific Homing Pigeon club, said this noon that the birds made the same flight last year in 17 hours. Weather conditions, coupled with forest fires and the fact that the flight had to be delayed until late in the season due to the foot and mouth epizootic, are the probable causes of the delay, Murphy said.

FIRE CHIEFS URGE CIGARETTE BAN IN FEDERAL FORESTS

Prevention Rather Than Fighting of Conflagrations Stressed at Conclave.

That the thirty-first annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Fire Chiefs at Pasadena, from August 4 to 10 was the largest in point of attendance of any meeting of the organization, 235 delegates being present, and that fire prevention rather than fire fighting was the subject most stressed, is the assertion of Fire Chief Samuel H. Short, of this city who attended the convention.

Fire Chief R. B. Hawcroft of Reno was elected president and Seattle was selected as the 1925 convention city. Other officers elected were: Chief Short of Oakland, first vice-president, Chief Mark Ryan of Redwood City, second vice-president, a newly created office; Chief Joseph Wood of Renton, Wash., re-elected treasurer; Jay W. Stevens, of San Francisco, re-elected secretary.

Chief R. B. Hawcroft, the newly elected president appointed an executive committee composed of Chief George Mantor, Seattle, Chief R. J. Scott, Los Angeles, and Chief Louis Almgren, San Diego.

One of the most important actions taken by the fire chiefs was the recommendation that manufactured cigarettes be barred from the federal forest preserves.

Efforts to secure a universal telephone number for fire departments was advocated by Chief George Wallace of Modesto, Cal.

Between the sessions of the convention the people of Pasadena furnished liberal entertainment.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Pasadena fire department, the only auxiliary on the coast, had charge of the entertainment of the wives and daughters of the delegates during the stay in Pasadena. A theater party at the Hollywood Egyptian theater, where Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad," was witnessed, and a luncheon at the Hotel Vista del Arroyo in Pasadena were enjoyed.

News of the CHURCHES

"Federated Man"

"Industrialism as an economic system has its faults. It needs to be pervaded by fraternalism," said Rev. Clarence Reed, pastor of the First Unitarian church, speaking yesterday morning on "Communism, Socialism, Industrialism and Fraternalism."

He said in part:

"The great task of American citizens today is to preserve and improve the institutions that we have inherited from the founders of our country. The political, economic and social ideals of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln are the greatest that have ever been given to mankind. Shall we stand idly by while these institutions are being undermined by the prophets of discontent and revolution?

"Socialism was an economic and political theory before the world war. It is no longer a subject simply of academic speculation, as it has been tried in several countries of Europe. There is not only the record of the complete industrial collapse of Russia, but it has also worked disintegration in the economic life of every country where it has been tried.

"Industrialism, falsely called capitalism, as it includes the factors of capital and labor, employers and employees, is the best economic system that has been developed in the history of man. It rests upon the foundation stones of industry, thrift, individual initiative and the safe-guarding of the rewards of faithful service and honest work. The highest expression of industrialism may be found in America, where the standard of living of the people is the wonder of the nations of the world.

"The index of the prosperity of a nation is to be found in the savings accounts that express the thrift of the people, the ownership and the furnishings of the houses in which the people live and the life insurance policies that stand between dependents and poverty.

"There are 1,500,000,000 people on our earth and of these 110,000,000 live in the United States under the highest developed form of industrialism. These 6 per cent of the earth's population called Americans have nearly 50 per cent of all the railroad mileage of the world, 75 per cent of the telephones and nearly 90 per cent of the automobiles. America produces 47 per cent of the copper, 64 per cent of the steel, 54 per cent of the iron, 43 per cent of the coal, 51 per cent of the lumber and 64 per cent of the petroleum of the world.

"Industrialism as an economic system has its faults. It needs to be pervaded by fraternalism. Walt Whitman expressed the spirit of fraternalism in the words 'I will accept nothing which all may not have their counterpart of on the same terms.' The next step forward will be some form of closer federation between employers and employees in order to render better service to mankind."

American Ideals

"A United States senator once said with a sneer that the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule had nothing to do with politics, and the statement he misrepresented proved itself true to the best American traditions by retiring him," said Dr. John Stephens speaking yesterday morning at the First Methodist Episcopal church on "The Faith of an American."

He said in part:

"The group of statuary erected in the old town of Plymouth, Massachusetts, to commemorate the character and the achievement of the Pilgrim Fathers is composed of five figures that symbolize the five principles of which these brave adventurers were the embodiment.

"They are Freedom, Morality, Law, Education and Faith. These may well be called 'The Five Points of Americanism,' and the true 100 per cent American, of whom we hear so much, will be loyal to every one of them. The artists who planned the Pilgrim monument gave Faith the place of honor as the dominant interest in the lives of those early settlers. The typical American, whether you call him Washington or Lincoln, Roosevelt or Woodrow Wilson, or whoever he may be that most perfectly incarnates the spirit of this great nation, will be found putting his faith above all else.

"Mammonism"

Beginning a series of sermons on the general topic, "The Prophet's Message to Modern American Life," Dr. Frank M. Sisley spoke yesterday at the First Presbyterian church on "Troubled Americans and Too Much House of Ivory."

He said in part:

"What is the house of ivory? The house of ivory in Israel was the elegant palace or mansion with ceilings, beds and frescoes finished in ivory and the prince of the house of ivory was a dangerously prosperous man.

"The house of ivory today represents not the prosperous man, but the prosperous man who is unprincipled, worldly, selfish, covetous the money lord who makes the farmer accept low prices for his wheat, corn cattle and would force the worker to accept a minimum wage for his labor and skill. The house of ivory represents a colored and accommodated moral standard. It is the resort to cleverness and drive and pinch in business and industrial methods rather than the exalting of honor, justice, mercy and the law of service.

"It is the endeavor to manipulate and control industries and make for private gain. It is even the attempt to use courts and governments and legislatures for personal ends. And the house of ivory is a religion—the religion of Mammonism. The youthful Chicago criminals have not been fully analyzed. They are not so much perfect criminals as the alienist says, as they are the inevitable expression of the religion of materialism.

"The farmer and worker and the little fellow in business are suffering economically because of the house of ivory. But the economic suffering is not so great as the mental anguish. The masses in America are sore, dead sore. Many workers today will tell you that instead of being in a workingman's paradise they are worrying at night over the high cost of living to make ends meet. The rule of the house of ivory is demoralizing moral and social standards.

"Some think that conditions must be radically straightened out in America by the rise of some public leader with the daring and courage of Mussolini of Italy. But neither ballots, bullets nor legislation will transform our social and industrial system. It is religion that will change its heart. According to the prophet Amos, the judgment of God is against sin in the system of life. The acceptance of the spirit and principles of Christianity can change our system and introduce a new era. Christianity is not impossible idealism. The trouble is that we don't practical Christianity and are afraid to test it. But the new day will not come until the masses themselves quit following strange gods and fads of European and American theorists and reverently turn to Christ. There is no hope without a spiritual awakening among farmers and workers and business men."

EASTBAY LEADS SAN FRANCISCO IN KEEPING MARRIED

Divorce and Wedding Ratio of Alameda County Gives Cupid Palm.

Marriages "take" better in the Eastbay than they do in San Francisco!

A comparison of San Francisco and Alameda counties' marriage licenses and divorce suits records for the fiscal year ending June 30, show this.

In San Francisco last year the marriages numbered a little over 15,000, the divorces nearly 5000. According to these figures but half the marriages survive the test of time and the rent bill.

In Alameda county, during the same period, there were 4110 marriage licenses issued as against 1693 suits for divorce filed a ratio of about one divorce for every 2½ marriages.

June proved the busiest month for the marriage license clerk, there being a total of 517 licenses issued during that time. A striking thing about the June, 1924 figure is that it is exactly the same as the total for June last year.

During the first six months of 1923 there were 1848 licenses taken out, while for the same period of 1924 there were 1916 issued, an increase of 68.

The heaviest month on the divorce calendar was January, when 163 suits were filed. There is also noted an increase of 21 in the number of divorces filed during the first six months of 1924 over the corresponding period last year.

According to Deputy County Clerk W. W. Lindgren, extreme cruelty, the charge that covers a multitude of sins, proved the most popular as grounds for divorce, over one-half the suits filed being based on that charge, with desertion and failure to provide following in order.

The most optimistic feature about the figures just released is that the increase in marriages is over three times as great as the increase in divorces filed, which may mean that marriages and divorces, as well as other things, are getting "back to normal."

Detective Swears Oath of 'Piracy' To Recover Loot

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—An imaginary ship, an imaginary ocean and an imaginary island satisfied two 10-year-old San Francisco boys who have been playing pirate for the past week, but when it came to the treasure, they demanded the real thing. Detective Earl Roney, by cultivating the acquaintance of one of the pirates, succeeded in unearthing the treasure, $500 worth of jewelery, said to have been stolen from various homes in the neighborhood.

The cache was dug up in a vacant lot in the Sunset district by Detective Rooney after the "pirate chief" had admitted him to the band and sworn him to secrecy. The boys are now in the juvenile detention home and the valuables are being held for the owners. Among those who reported that jewelry had been taken from their homes were: Elmer M. Lewis, 1128 Irving street; Thomas Korn, 1325 Irving street; August Hjerath, 1046 Irving street; George Fanning, 1044 Irving street and the Misses Miller, 1042 Irving street.

Filter Plants
built for expansion

EVEN when water is gathered under the most sanitary conditions from well-guarded watershed lands, filtration is a valuable health protection measure for the community.

¶ When the close-in supplies of water are no longer adequate to meet the needs of the rapidly growing East Bay communities, and a distant source is developed and brought in—then filtration will be even more important.

¶ With the future in mind, the East Bay Water Company looked ahead and designed the San Pablo Filter Plant so that it can be expanded without loss of time or money. And the same forethought & vision has been used in designing the Upper San Leandro Filter Plant, which is now being constructed as one of the units in the Upper San Leandro water project. Each plant can deliver 12 million gallons of pure water daily. Surrounding them is sufficient land for more than doubling their capacity.

¶ STEP by step, as more water is needed to supply the needs of the growing East Bay District, the capacity of the filter plants can be increased. In the meantime, there will be no surplus filtration equipment standing idle. Provision is made for the present; plans are laid for additions which the future will demand.

Call it a duty, or call it a privilege—the East Bay Water Company undertakes to expand its service as the East Bay District grows.

Wife for 25 Years Divorced When She Flees With Another

After twenty-five years of married life Rosalee Van Cott found a man she loved better than her husband, Alfred H. Van Cott, 3749 Loma Vista avenue told Superior Judge T. W. Harris today. Van Cott was granted a decree of divorce.

In support of his allegation he produced a letter received from the woman after she had left his home. In the communication she wrote:

"Dear Al:

"It is no use expecting me to return to you as I told you last July on our anniversary I hoped I would never spend another day with you. I have absolutely no affection or feeling for you—rather the reverse. Since then I have met a man I think more of in a minute than I do of you in a year so you see a reconciliation is impossible.

"So this is good-bye,

Rose."

Van Cott testified that his wife left him April 14, last, and that she packed up her things and left in company with the other man.

NOTED PIANISTE PLAYS FOR HOSTS

By ROY HARRISON DANFORTH.

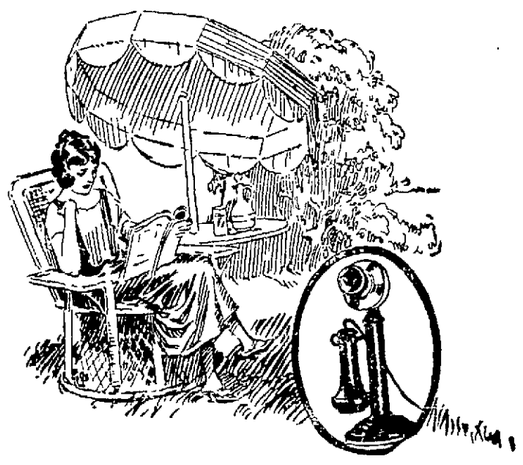

Marguerite Melville Liszniewska, pianist, said her ayes and vales amid pleasant surroundings yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Beckman on upper Chabot Road. Half a hundred guests of the Beckmans, who are her hosts before she proceeds south to play with Alfred Hertz in the Hollywood bowl and thence east again, heard an informal recital which she gave.

Madame Liszniewska is a player of obvious talents and training. She has facility at her finger tips, and an excellent grasp of dynamic coloring as well. Her playing of a varied program was as full of lights and shades as the surrounding laurel grove. Enthusiasm was the dominant element in her style; whole-heartedness seemed never to flag whatever the composition.

It was possible in such surroundings to offer numbers that one seldom has an opportunity to hear. Such, for instance, was Schumann's "Kinderszenen," of which the thirteen portions seemed quite too few, so delicately, spontaneously and intelligently did she play them. The "Edouard Ballad" of Brahms was a striking bit of subjective analysis. Two Chopin numbers, a fantaisie and the C sharp minor scherzo, elicited much applause.

Madame Liszniewska's other numbers were: Sarabande, Rameau-Godowsky; "Danse Ecossaise," Beethoven; Intermezzo in C, op. 119, Brahms; "Maid With the Flaxen Hair," Debussy; "St. Patrick's Cathedral," Emerson Whithorne.

GOVERNOR, FOES TEST STRENGTH

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 11.—With Governor Richardson demanding a vote of confidence and his political foes equally insistent that he be repudiated, the legislative fight now being waged in California is fast devolving into an open test of the administration's strength, according to veteran political observers in the capital.

The observations of political forecasters are substantiated in part by statements emanating from the opposing camps.

"The issue of the campaign is clear and distinct," Governor Richardson told an International News Service correspondent. "It is summed up in one word—economy."

Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood and Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, who head the opposition to the governor, countered as follows: "The issue is not economy but 'Shall the people or the corporations rule?'"

"Two hundred and seventy-one candidates will participate in the first skirmish between the governor and his opponents at the primary on August 26. For the eighty seats in the assembly there are 224 certified candidates while in the senate race 47 aspirants are out for 20 places under contest.

President Takes Two Walks Each Day Despite Heat

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The intense hear which has prevailed here for the last two weeks has interfered little with the program of President Coolidge, who has followed throughout his practice of taking two walks daily for exercise.

This has been practically the only recreation indulged in by the president, aside from his trips on the Mayflower, the presidential yacht. It is his custom to walk about the city in the early morning anywhere from thirty minutes to two hours and again in the evening for a shorter time. Coolidge follows no regular path on these jaunts. He is described by friends as a brisk walker, but not hurried.

His speech of acceptance completed, Coolidge is planning to rest a little more this week until the address is delivered Thursday night. Friday the president with his family plans to leave for his father's home at Plymouth, Vt., for a vacation of 10 or 12 days.

La Follette Takes Ten-Day Respite

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Aside from routine organization work, little will be done, it was indicated today, toward advancing the La Follette-Wheeler candidacies for another 10 days.

Senator La Follette, it was said, feels he should refrain from discussing campaign issues this week, leaving the field open for an expression of views to John W. Davis the Democratic nominee, and President Coolidge, both of whom will deliver addresses in connection with ceremonies arranged to formally notify them of their nominations.

MICHIGAN TO PUT FORD ON BALLOT WITHIN 10 DAYS

Secretary of State Says He Must Do It; Ford "Not Interested."

LANSING, Mich. Aug. 11.—Henry Ford, six years ago a Democratic candidate for United States senator and now an involuntary candidate for the Republican nomination for the same office, has ten days in which to eliminate himself from the lists in the statewide primary September 9.

Charles J. Deland, secretary of state, who accepted nominating petitions for the Detroit manufacturer, made this announcement after obtaining a ruling from the state attorney-general's office. Ford's name will go on the ballot, the secretary of state declared, unless a letter or telegram is received from him before the ballots are printed asking that his name be withdrawn.

The Ford petitions were filed almost at the last minute by Peter Fagan, secretary of the public utilities commission. The petitions contained approximately 34,000 names, although only slightly more than 7000 were required.

SOUTH SUDBURY, Mass., Aug. 11.—Henry Ford, a guest at Wayside Inn, denied himself to reporters today, but sent word through his secretary that he had nothing to add to the declaration on his arrival that he was not a candidate for nomination as United States senator and did not propose to be one. Confronted with the information that Ford's name would go on the Michigan primary ballot unless he sent a withdrawal within the next ten days, Ford's secretary would make no comment beyond "Mr. Ford is not interested in politics."

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 11.—Roy M. Harron, vice-presidential nominee of the People's Progressive party, announced here today that he would demand that the name of Henry Ford be placed on the ballot in Nebraska as the presidential candidate of the Progressive party. He declared Henry Ford had received a presidential endorsement in the Nebraska primaries. His objection to Senator La Follette, he said, was based on the senator's stand against the Ku Klux Klan.

NEW EMERGENCY AS WINDS RENEW FOREST FIRE PERIL

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—High winds and low humidity in many parts of California again have developed serious fire conditions, according to reports of the state fire emergency organization, consisting of the California Development association, the United States forest service and the state board of forestry.

"We are approaching one of the worst periods of the fire season," said State Forester M. B. Pratt. "It is only through greater effort on the part of every organization in the state that we shall be able to meet this situation. Public education in fire prevention is the solution of the problem.

"The state and federal governments are cooperating effectively in fire prevention. New co-operative agreements have been signed with Humboldt, Santa Barbara, Trinity, Napa, Solano and Yuba counties. Santa Cruz and Tehama counties also have agreed to defray all fire fighting expenses in those counties and Placer county has offered supplies and transportation."

COMPARISON OF OPPONENT HAPPY ONE, SAYS CARTER

Commissioner Tells Why Salesman Is Expected to Deliver Goods.

"I note that my opponent—Mike Kelly's candidate for Congress—compares the office of Congressman to that of a traveling salesman for a wholesale house, and in his particular instance it seems to be a very happy comparison," was the way in which Commissioner Albert E. Carter smilingly but forcefully opened his talk before an interested group of women and men voters at the home of Mrs. A. H. Cheney, 5675 Miles avenue.

"It is a happy comparison," continued Carter, "because my opponent was 'traveling' at the most important period of his congressional career when the Alameda naval base question was the paramount one in Washington just prior to the opening of Congress. My opponent was traveling leisurely over Tobuga Island, inspecting, he said, 'the fortifications' of that island down by Panama. But Congressman Curry of Vallejo was not 'traveling.' He was in Washington on the job with the result that when my opponent did arrive in Washington he found that Curry had checkmated him at every move and the Alameda naval base issue was lost for the time being at least.

"And that reminds me of the conversation Congressman Curry had with a Sacramento friend of mine. Said my friend to Curry: 'Congressman, you won a great victory for Mare Island and Vallejo and this northern district by blocking the Alameda naval base.' And Congressman Curry replied: 'Well, now, don't thank me; thank the Alameda county Congressman.'

"Wholesale houses do employ traveling representatives, but when they fail to deliver the goods they fire them," concluded Carter, closing this reference to the naval base. He then took up other problems confronting the Eastbay.

"The development of our harbor is undoubtedly the greatest problem before Alameda county today," said Carter. "And you citizens of Oakland have made it possible for me to understand this problem better, perhaps, than any other public official. That this knowledge can be capitalized for the benefit of the Eastbay in Washington there is no doubt. When Los Angeles can in a few short years secure $8,000,000 from the federal government for dredging and harbor development work, while Oakland, with a far superior harbor, only gets $2,000,000, we cannot blame the government, but we can blame our representative in Congress, who failed to realize that Oakland had a harbor worth fighting for.

"Harbor development means more industries. Industries mean more and larger payrolls. That's progress. And that is a very important part of my program. For four years I have fought for Oakland and Eastbay harbor development. And I shall continue to fight for it.

"Another thing I want you to know. And that is this: Mike Kelly is not for me. I have made no pre-election promises, because my opponent knows how difficult it is to keep these promises. He also knows that political bosses demand to name the appointments. If there is any explaining to do I'll do it now and not two years from now. My opponent complains that the citizens he meets for the most part have their minds 'filled with chaff while ignoring the big issues.' Perhaps they have in mind the achievement of my opponent—the removal of the postoffice steps on Seventeenth street."

Oakland Oil Man Dies of Fall Hurts

Byron Ogburn, 35, 2545 Bartlett street, Oakland, died yesterday at the St. Francis hospital from injuries received when he fell three stories in an open elevator shaft of the Flower hotel, 427 Bush street, San Francisco.

Ogburn, with a friend, was entering the elevator. The operator failed to see Ogburn, and started the elevator just as he stepped through the open door.

Ogburn, who was president of the Shasta Oil Company of Texas, was the son of the late Charles Ogburn and Mrs. Ella Ogburn, 2545 Bartlett street. Besides his mother, he is survived by three brothers, Carl, Veron and Arch, and two sisters, Mrs. Cyril Collins and Mrs. Neva Pierce.

News of Politicians

An effort is being made to induce members of the Republican County Committee selected two years ago by M. J. Kelly to endorse the Johnson candidates for the legislature in opposition to those favoring Governor Richardson. Endorsement is also being sought for the Kelly candidate for Congress, James H. MacLafferty. It is understood a number of the legislative candidates, particularly from Berkeley and outside districts, are opposed to the announcement of such an endorsement. The county committee has not functioned for a number of years. Under the direct primary they have practically no duties.

Addressing the members of the University Christian Church, Bible class yesterday morning, Assemblywoman Anna L. Saylor spoke on some of the problems to come before the 1925 legislature. Mrs. Saylor has been a member of the past three legislatures, representing part of Berkeley and Oakland and her talk had the background of her three terms' experience.

"Until California is able to evolve a new and more equitable system of taxation the old trouble will dominate each successive session of the legislature," she said. "The people who pay local and county tax, but no state tax on the one hand are contending against the public service corporations who pay state taxes and no county or local taxes."

"Sponges" was the specific topic of Mrs. Saylor's talk, in the course of which she pointed out "the kind which grows on the body politic," and said: "They enjoy, absorb and profit by all of the blessings and opportunities of a representative government, but consider themselves too intellectual or too good, perhaps, to participate in its deliberations. They enjoy the hundred and one governmental functions without being aware that they owe anything in return. To my mind, no one has a moral or civil right to criticise this government or its officials who refuses to carry a full share of the burdens of citizenship."

Mrs. Saylor pointed out how the words "politics" and "political machine" have fallen into disrepute, a fact which has done irreparable injury to our government.

Supervisor John F. Mullins, in his canvass for re-election as supervisor of the Fifth district, addressed meetings Saturday in various units of the district extending from Rockridge to Central Oakland. Speaking before the Sons and Daughters of Washington, Supervisor Mullins summarized his work on behalf of the humanitarian agencies of the county government during the past four years. He stressed on his work in behalf of the Baby Hospital, Del Valle farm for children, new Highland Hospital, Detention Home, County Infirmary, dental clinics, public health center, estuary tube, for which $4,000,000 in bonds have been voted by the people; the public schools, system of advertising which has brought so many new factories and industries to the Eastbay, the outdoors relief which cares for the needy; and the widows' pensions, phich come under the jurisdiction of the supervisors. Yesterday Supervisor Mullins pitched the first ball in a game in Bay View Park at West Oakland, which playground was established by Mullins when a member of the Oakland city council.

Service at Less than Cost
We want to talk with you about the three new East Oakland motor bus transportation services that we announced last week.
Our estimated annual operating expense for these services is $72,000.
Our estimated gross annual revenue from them is $37,000.
Our estimated annual operating loss is $35,000, without including interest or fair return on our investment.
Why run these motor coaches at this loss?
For two good reasons.
First, as part of our share in maintaining "the Best Transportation Service in America".
Second, because these services are worth many times their cost to the East Oakland district. For that reason we feel sure the public will give them generous support and wipe out this deficit. Otherwise the services cannot be continued indefinitely.
Give us your liberal patronage for these new motor coach services, from the start.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY
by Ad Schuster

WEDDING BELLS AND SOAP.

IT is given to youth and love to be confident, but when a man embarks upon matrimony and a career of installment paying with little in reserve save a brave assurance, he is in for some troubled hours. For Leonard Crayle it may be said he never contemplated the possibility of failure. It was enough for him that Jessie Meadow smiled upon his suit and that he held a job of a kind which is said to be promising and which, as a matter of fact, had been promising steadily for three years.

Leonard knew that he must have more money before he could order the furniture, buy the ring, and move Jessie into a bungalow on First street.

"I'll get it all right," he told her. "Never you worry, there isn't anything that can hold me down."

They found a house under construction that was to their taste and planned to be married as soon as the last nail was driven and the paint was dry. Leonard was happy. He held his head high, talked of a mysterious deal or secret and laughed to silence any fears the girl expressed.

"Listen," he said one evening after she had demanded some knowledge of the budget upon which they were to start. "I have no money now, save what I earn, but I have some coming. It will be a good sum enough to pay for the furniture and have more in the bank. You didn't think, did you that I would get married without knowing where I stand?"

That evening in his room Leonard drew out a full page advertisement which offered $10,000 to the person who could suggest the best name and slogan for a new brand of soap. With the page before him he gave himself to the task. Every evening for two weeks he had done this and as result he had mailed fourteen answers. In three more days the contest would close. Leonard thought how much he needed the money, considered how much brainpower he had put into the task, and decided the prize was as good as won. Then he planned how they would spend the ten thousand and reveled in a sense of affluence.

The little house was finished and it would be two months before the soap company would announce the winner. There was really, no need to wait. Someone else might take the house.

"Toothwell, Lathergood, Cleanemquik," Leonard ran over the names he had submitted and his only fear was, lest the judges could not decide which of his lot was the best. So he went to Jessie with the story of the money that was coming to him and the wedding plans were made.

In the little house everything was happiness except for the fact the second installment on the furniture was due and there was little money in the bank. Jessie wondered when the money was coming and Leonard smiled at her fears.

In a week or ten days he would toss her a check for $10,000 and she would know what kind of a man she had married. Probably the soap company would announce his name to the world, would print his picture, and he would become famous. Leonard found it difficult to wait for the day.

One morning as they sat at breakfast and Leonard was reading his paper there came an end to the dream. Who would think a flat and flamboyant ad could be the pin to prick the bubble of confidence? It did that and more, for it made the rich Leonard Crayle poor, humble and frightened. Here was printed the winning name: Wedding Bell Soap.

Leonard folded the paper slowly and looked across the table at his wife.

"That money," he said slowly, "It isn't coming."

Jessie reached over and put her hand on his.

"We'll get along. Maybe, you'll let me work and help."

"All the same," said the husband waxing indignant as he remembered the answers he had mailed "The names I sent in were better than the one that took the prize!"

Then he repeated them to her with emphasis and explanation.

"And one of them," he declared, "is better than Wedding Bell, don't you think?"

"Wedding Bell!" Jessie rose with a little cry, "That's the name I sent in!"

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE
by Adele Garrison

ANXIETY.

"WHEN the noise of the car begins to get faint," I whispered to Edwin. "I shall start this. Luckily it doesn't make much noise."

"All right," he assented also in a whisper, and then we all waited, tensely listening to the motor of the other car. In that interval there shot through my mind a remembrance of another time when I had waited in a similar retreat farther down the road for another car to pass. Then I had been doing government service, now I was upon an errand affecting the happiness of my own family. But the winding paths and secluded nooks of the section were serving as faithfully for one expedition as they had for another.

I knew that many legends hung around the section tales of the Revolutionary war, when the farmers hid their horses in glades more secluded still than these, that the British soldiers might not find them, tales of Indian skirmishes, farther back, tales of smuggling later on, of spies during the great World war, and last of all, tales of bootlegging touching every road of this end of the island, where the distance from the coast of the ocean to that of sound or bay was so short as to be almost negligible to a swift motor car.

These remembrances and speculations, however, were but loose threads floating around the strand of stout fabric to which my mind was holding. I did not wish the men in the other car to notice the sound of my own starting engine, therefore I must not wait until they had stopped theirs altogether. On the other hand, I wanted them to get as far away as possible. I was glad to have Edwin take the decision out of my hands.

"They are slowing up now," he whispered. "Better—"

I did not wait for the finish of [illegible] but turned the switch key, hoping desperately that the car would respond in its invariably gratifying fashion. Never was the sound of the starting motor more welcome to my ears, and I handled my gears and clutch with infinite care for fear of stalling, as I guided the car out of the little glade into the wood road and then out to the broader highway.

"I'm going to let her out a little," I said to Edwin. "Will you watch that side of the road for me?"

"Of course," he said, and I sent the car along the road at as good a pace as I dared, considering the rain, the constant curving of the road, and the danger of skidding.

"I'm going to take this road along the bay to Southampton," I explained, although I knew that all roads were alike to my passengers, unfamiliar with the region. But my nervous tension demanded relief in some sort of speech, and this was nearest my lips. "It's a little longer and more winding, but there's very little travel on it at night, and we come out in a remote part of the village. By the time we reach the main road if there do happen to be watchers for us, we might have come from any one of four different directions, and there will be other cars passing."

"That appears to be a splendid idea," Harriet said in the tone of a person who does not understand the conversation in the least, but thinks some comment upon it must be made.

"Do you want me to keep on telling you if I see a light?" Mary piped, inordinately proud of her position as lookout.

"I shouldn't think it would be necessary now," Harriet interposed, "and I'm afraid she'll get chilled kneeling on the seat. I can't keep the blankets over the others, either, with her wriggling around."

Despite my anxiety, I could not help smiling to myself at Harriet's querulous tone. It was so exactly the worried mother-tone of the woman who can see nothing beyond possible "colds" or other illness for the small children in her care. My sister-in-law was fast being molded into the niche Fate had provided so strangely for her.

"I won't need you now, dear," I assured the eager child, "but if I should want you again, I'll tell you."

My brother-in-law had made no comment whatever upon the little colloquy, but after a few minutes, I noticed he was engaged in a whispered conversation with the boy upon his lap, and after an interval of silence, he spoke aloud.

"Bob are you comfortable, or would you rather get in another position?"

"If you don't mind, Uncle Edwin, I WOULD rather sit the other way," the boy responded, and something in his tone made me think suddenly of my school teaching days. The voice and manner of the child were those of one coached, and the conviction came to me that my brother-in-law had rehearsed question and answer with the child. Why?

SECRET OF MAKING FRIENDS OF STRANGERS

Suspecting the worst of the other fellow must make us feel darned virtuous in comparison. Is there any other reason for our attitude towards the man or woman who has had a more adventuresome life than ours?

Now I'm going to tell you what I think of the chap, or girl, who goes along "sniffing for a past" in the lives of his friends. He is merely placing his own loose leanings on the shoulders of the one he suspects. Not having the courage to step out and find adventure, and knowing how HE would act under certain circumstances, he is quite positive that the other fellow has "fallen into temptation."

Which is the worst?

But you'll find that the man who has led a fine, upstanding life, is usually willing to grant that the other fellow has done the same.

It is the petty, envious-minded, who go through life "suspecting" the world.

Now here is a man who has taken adventure by the horns. He has traveled and bummed his way to new places, but there is apparently no ground for thinking his morals have been dragged in the mud, or that he is not fit for human companionship. It is his less daring friends who "suspect the worst." Their own low leaning have convinced them that morals must go smash the minute one leaves town.

Dear Geraldine:

I do all the things the rest do, even to reading your columns in the paper—think it's a fine thing—try not to misunderstand deliberately and enjoy myself immensely.

Can't think of a good argument regarding any of tonight's letters, so will voice a little personal protest of my own, one which means an awful lot to me.

First, I've always done things in the least conventional ways. In fact, none of the things I've done have been conventional. To make this short will say that I left home when 16 years had fallen lightly on my already inconsistent shoulders and was absent four years, during which time I traveled steadily, first all over the States a la side doors or blind baggage, then all over the world working on ships. Have turned my hand to almost every occupation imaginable, from chopping cocoanuts on a little South Sea Island to a quartermaster on the S. S. Leviathan.

And now, Geraldine, I've just arrived back home. Find that I have a few casual friends who were once intimate ones, but for the most part my acquaintances seem to think I've undergone some very dark period, something intangible to them and therefore bound to have a catch in it some place. They're not very optimistic, are they?

The real occurrence responsible for this letter happened just tonight. One of my late casual friends has a sister. Said sister and I had been doing bravely until tonight. I really had gotten to think a lot of her. Her folks, before, had given me a lot of suggestive hints that they didn't altogether approve of me in connection with their daughter, but I had plenty of initiative and deigned not to notice. The climax came tonight, as climaxes do. I was told in no mincing words that I was not a desirable companion for any daughter of theirs. To make the case still more intricate they had me enmeshed in some of the most colossal fabulous fiction ever, that's that.

Now I don't know which way to turn. Disappointed in the girl for listening to them and not too fond of myself for persisting in liking her.

Guess, after all this is just a protest against life. Not half as acute as thousands of others, but everything is comparable with everything else, so please try to tell me why people can't be themselves. Must I keep traveling until everything grows old and commonplace? I don't want to do that, because I have already partially arrived at that stage, or must I go away like a criminal and start anew?

Probably this is just a small voice, Jerry, this protest of mine, magnified by its recent occurrence. Haven't any doubt but that I'll get over it, but it's not nice, a bit. Would it be too much to say that I think I know what you would say if you answered this letter? Would you say for me to stay here and show them all that their doubts are groundless?

Thanks.

NAMESAKE (Masculine.)

"You've guessed it, Brother, I'D STICK, but I wouldn't give the particular little group you mention the chance to say "naughty, naughty" to me again. It don't speak well for their character when they are so thoroughly convinced that goodness exists only when under their eagle eyes. Gosh, think what they'd LIKE to do!

Our Children By Angelo Patri

HANDS OFF.

When people first discovered their hands it was in order to reach out and take something they wanted. That instinct persists to a remarkable degree to this day, and I am willing to risk being called a prophet just to state that I believe it is always going to persist as long as folks are folks. And no harm done at that, if we will only use a little discretion in the reaching.

For instance in the matter of handling children. It is most natural for any of us to reach out to touch and take the child who comes near to us. Children are very lovely and their appeal is irresistible, but that is no excuse for our putting our hands upon them. We have but to reflect for an instant to remember that our instinct rebels against anyone placing hands upon us. Children have the very same instinct. Most of them shrink from being touched, especially by a stranger.

But in spite of the child's very evident reluctance we persist in picking him up and seating him upon our laps and cuddling him and stroking his hair and chucking him under the chin and tickling him and otherwise maltreating him until he screams aloud when we hasten to crown our offense by smothering his remonstrances with kisses. Isn't it shameful?

A child has a personality and a dignity all his own and it ought to be respected. If it isn't, things are bound to be unpleasant for everybody concerned. The child has an outburst of temper or hysterics and he is either punished or pampered toward his further undoing. Left to himself he would undoubtedly have gone on his way, blissfully unconscious of such things as temper or nerves.

Kissing and cuddling little children constitute one way by which infectious diseases are carried to them. People coming from the cars and the shops and the crowded streets pick up a tender, guarded little one and inoculate him with kisses. Any grown person should know better than that, but some folk seem to find it hard to understand.

While the interruptions are hard on the child and the shocks resultant from his struggles for freedom are very wearing; while the danger from contagion is serious, the gradual breaking down of his personality is worse. Nothing that endangers a child's personal pride to himself and his power should ever touch him. Laying unwelcome hands upon him threatens his inherent self-respect and dignity, and his mother is well within her duty when she objects to any form of it.

Shouldn't he be loved and cuddled? Of course. He needs to be played with and patted and stroked and squeezed and all the rest of it, but you will find him inviting that when he wants it. He will hold out his hands to mother or father or some dearly loved friend like grandfather or Nana. That's just the idea. Keep hands off the children until they ask for the caress. Then it feeds their souls and bodies, and makes their day glad with love. Which is as it ought to be.

From One Who Recovers After Many Hard Falls

Is there a response in Oakland town to this letter? I hope so.

Dear Geraldine:

I am not going to "cry on your shoulder," because I am not built that way. For though I have lots of discouraging "falls" and always think I will take time to cry, some day, I always find myself getting up and going at it again. I am trying to find work, Jerry. I have advertised and answered numbers of ads, but have found nothing yet that a decent woman would have. It has occurred to me several times that you might help me, but I hated to annoy you.

I would prefer a place as companion and housekeeper to an elderly person or couple, or housekeeper for gentlemen. But would even cook in a small family or small hotel or institution, or take care of children.

I am a middle-aged woman, a widow, and have rather a good education, though not a high school graduate. Jerry, I know you do not conduct a matrimonial agency, but I wonder if somewhere among those who read your column there is not a good man, past 50, with enough to keep the wolf from the door, who would like a good comrade to make happy the rest of life. I would love to meet such a one.

Box 1, Centerville, Cal.

How's this for a merry bit of rhyme with a sting "carefully" concealed for the psychoanalyst bug:

Dear Jerry:

I'm no rhymster; this, like Topsy, "jest grew." Give it space if it merits; otherwise your wastebasket. It has no title.

R. W. C.

I'm not concerned with Freud,
I think him bold;
His ideas so adroit,
All leave me cold.
When others prate and spout,
"Complex" and "inhibition,"
I cannot race about
His startling exposition.
But this I realize,
And wish made clear,
I'd like to idealize
My notions queer.
Then when I feel I must
Do stunts bizarre,
My "complex" would, I trust,
My queerness square!

Way Suggested For Discovering New Friendships

Here is a straight-from-the-shoulder message to Disappointed and others who "can't find a real pal." They don't grow on street corners.

Dear Jerry:

I am hereby enrolling myself as a member of your gang, as I have never written to you before.

I certainly approve of your work, Jerry, and the stand you take. There are two big reasons why I admire you. First, is that you stand for the things that are right and try your best to help those who need your big shoulders to cry on. And secondly, you're not afraid to scold or reprimand any member of your gang if you know they are wrong.

I'm going to refer to "Disappointed." It seems to me that "Disappointed" doesn't know how to mingle with people. It's true he hasn't been here in California but six months, but still he doesn't know. From the way he talks or writes I would think he was a "tough" and was one to shun. I know that if any machine stopped and the occupant nodded to me, I'd sure make tracks for some place of safety. Wouldn't you, Jerry? If "Disappointed" wants to know some real nice people why doesn't he go to a certain church regularly? Or to Christian Endeavor? You find the best pals at C. E., and you know they're good people. I felt awful lonesome when I first came to this town, but I went to C. E., and considering I've only been here a month and a half I've made lots of friends. You know there's the social life connected with it and they do have the best picnics.

Well, Jerry, I've written quite too much. I hope "Disappointed" comes to himself and finds the real bunch.

With lots of love to you and your work.

PHYLLIS.

The above letter, written by Phyllis, answers this one better than I can.

Jerry:

I have written to you before so I guess I can again write to you. Jerry, I am just a newcomer to Oakland and it just seems I can't get acquainted with any girls. I am not what you call good-looking, but I guess I'd pass in the dark. I have a machine, but that don't seem to do any good. All I get is a smile from them, and that's all. Geel it's so lonesome to sit home at night and listen to the radio or else to go riding and see all the other folks with girls.

Well, Jerry, this letter may seem funny, but it don't seem that way to me.

Well, I hope to hear from you soon.

Yours truly,

SEATTLE.

This Youngster 'Most as Heavy As Little Mother

Perhaps someone can help here:

Dear Geraldine:—

Would you do a favor for a woman who has no way at all of buying a baby buggy for her little five month old baby boy? He is so heavy for her to carry everywhere in her arms. This little woman only weighs 105 pounds and is 23 years old and has had five children. The oldest one is 8 and the others on down to five months.

I feel so sorry for her and I thought perhaps you could print this, and if someone has an old buggy which she does not need any more, the woman I mention could go after it.

They live in the same house we live in, only in another apartment. My granddaughter helps her with the baby at times so she can do her work. My granddaughter is 12 years old, but if she could take the baby out in the air, that would be much better, and then the other little children could help.

Her husband is a hard-working man but he cannot get steady work. He is a painter. It is hard to house, feed and clothe them, let alone buy anything extra. They have only been here a short time.

I am 74 years old and have all I can do keeping house and looking after my two grandchildren while my daughter is away at work. I do the work and make all our clothes. My daughter and I are both widows and cannot spare money for anyone else, but we help all we can.

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S POP CORN PARTY.

Uncle Wiggily had gone down to the seashore again for a little vacation trip, and one morning he came skipping up from the sandy beach, his pink nose twinkling as fast as a lightning bug on a warm night in June.

"Come on, Nurse Jane! Hop along, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy!" called the rabbit to his muskrat lady housekeeper, who was at the seashore with him. "We are going to have some jolly good fun!"

"If you mean, by fun, that I am to stand in the ocean and let you splash water on me with your long ears," laughed Nurse Jane, "I'm not going to do it!"

"No! No! Nothing like that!" chuckled the bunny rabbit. "I am going to give a little popcorn party on the beach for some of the animal children. I would like to have you come along to see the sport."

Nurse Jane said she would go, and soon, down on the sands, a fire was glowing. Uncle Wiggily had bought a popper, which is a sort of wire cage, to keep the corn from sailing away as it pops. He had also bought some ears of special corn—the kind that bursts and turns white, like snowflakes, when it is shaken over a fire. And Uncle Wiggily had bought some pans in which to mix the corn. On some he would put melted butter and salt. On others of the popped kernels he would pour red, white and blue sugar.

"Oh, what lovely fun we are going to have!" cried Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels.

"We never had so much fun since school let out!" squealed Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the little piggie boys. Others of the animal children were dancing about the sands, for Uncle Wiggily had invited all his little friends to the pop corn party.

"Sit down on the sand in a ring around the rosie circle, my dears," called Nurse Jane, "and Uncle Wiggily will pop the corn."

The bunny gentleman shook the wire popper of corn kernels over the blaze.

"Pip! Pop! Poppity pip pap!" popped the corn. The kernels burst—they turned white like snowflakes and Uncle Wiggily turned the corn out into the pans. Then he popped another popper full and Nurse Jane began putting on the melted butter and salt and also the red, white and blue sugar.

"Let me make a popcorn ball!" begged Floppy the pig. He took some of the corn, covered with soft, melted sugar, and patted it round in his paws. He made a fine, big popcorn ball. Then, all of a sudden, while Uncle Wiggily was passing some of the buttered corn to Susie Littletail, Floppy's brother Curly squealed:

"Let me make a popcorn ball!" begged Floppy.

"Oh! Ohee-e-e! Look at Floppy! He's got his mouth wide open and he can't get it shut. Oh, look at Floppy!"

Uncle Wiggily and the others looked, and what do you suppose that piggie boy had done? He had stuffed the whole, big pop corn ball in his mouth at once. The ball was too big for him to swallow! He couldn't even chew it.

"Coo! Ga! Gurra! Gunk!" gurgled poor Floppy, for he couldn't talk.

"Get Dr. Possum!" yelled Nurse Jane.

"No; I can cure him!" said Uncle Wiggily. Taking up his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, the bunny rabbit pushed the pop corn ball down Floppy's throat. The little pig choked and gurgled and tears came into his eyes. Then he grunted and said:

"Goopie! Goopie! I'm all right now."

"But don't you ever do a thing like that again!" said Nurse Jane.

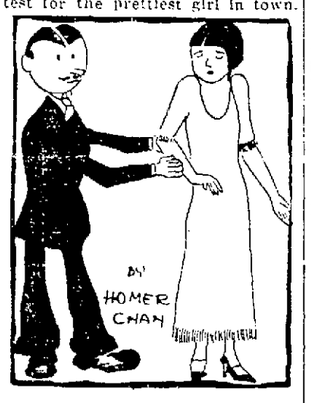

"No'm, I won't—ever!" promised Floppy. Then he only ate a little corn at a time, as all the others did, and they had a fine time at the bunny's beach party. And if the carpenter will make some hating curls for the rag doll's little sister, you shall next hear the story of Uncle Wiggily and the bumble bee.

WITCHES' & PIRATES' STORY DEN

ROBERT EDWARDS.

JACK AND JANE.

Jack was a poor boy and his mother was sick, so he was obliged to work. He sold papers and got barely enough money to buy things to eat. He was 18 years of age. He had many customers and the one that he liked best was Mrs. Marie Guston, a widow who had a daughter named Jane, Jane was 17 years of age and had won a beauty contest for the prettiest girl in town.

Now to get back to Jack. One day as Jack was selling papers a man came up, bought a paper and handed him a five dollar bill.

"I haven't got the change," said Jack, "but I can get it for you."

"Well," said the man, "I will let you keep the change under one condition. And that is if you can tell me where Jane Gustover lives."

"Well," thought Jack, "this seems funny. A man asking me! This is the first time a man has asked me."

"Well," spoke Jack, "come back tomorrow and meet me here at this corner and when I sell out I will take you down there."

The next day as Jack was getting his papers he was told to holler about the "Black Man," a man of mystery. Jack happened to glance at the picture and to his surprise it was the same man that he had been talking to on the corner. Jack sold out, and then ran home as fast as he could go. He ate his supper (which was just a piece of bread and a glass of water), for he was saving his money to get his mother some medicine. He put on what he called his "best," which was only a hat and coat, and went down to the police station and told the chief all about the mystery man, and that he knew that he had seen him, for he was all dressed in black. Black shoes, black stockings, black hat, black coat, black pants and a black tie, which was a correct description.

The next thing he did was to go to Jane's house and warn her about the Mystery man. But when he got there he heard that Mrs. Gustover was weeping.

"What is the matter?" asked Jack, "and where is Jane?"

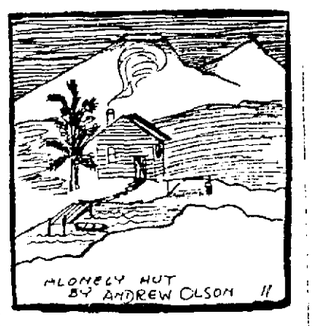

"She has disappeared, and we can find no trace of her," said Mrs. Gustover.

"Well," said Jack, "I am going to find her if it costs my life."

"Go," said Mrs. Gustover, "and if you find her you can have her in marriage." Jack just remembered that he had an engagement with this man, so he went down to the corner and waited. Soon he saw him coming in a car with six men.

"I am ready to go with you now," said the man. "Get into the car and we will drive down. Jack got in, but as soon as they drove around the corner the men took and bound and gagged him and took him to an old house at the end of the woods.

"You will be safe here," said the mystery man to Jack, and went out and left a man there to guard him. Soon Jack heard sobbings, and when he looked out he saw some men with Jane.

"Now we have them both," said the man. "They will bring a good ransom to us."

When Jane came in she saw Jack, and was so surprised she fainted.

Jack was all tied up from head to foot, and was struggling to get loose, but he was not strong enough to break the rope. Jack was set up against the wall and a guard was there to watch him day and night.

Early the next morning he had a little something to eat. All at once the guard fell asleep and Jack saw his chance to escape. He took and put a cigarette in his mouth, bent his head to one side and touched one of the ropes that bound him and held it there until it broke loose. Then he went into the room where Jane was tied up and untied her, told her to stay there until he found a way to get out. He soon found one, and told her to follow him. They went through a trap door which Jack had found and got out through a tunnel that was in the hills. They went and got a band of policemen and went after the mystery man. They found him hiding in an old tunnel in the hills. He got a life sentence in prison and hard work breaking stones.

Jack married Jane and the police captain married Mrs. Gustover, and thus ends my story.

There once was a prince who was in love with a beautiful princess. Also there was a wicked giant who was in love with the beautiful princess. The giant, tonight, was to come and take the beautiful princess away. It was just the luck that the princess loved the prince. The prince was in deep thought how to get the princess out of the castle before the giant appeared. When he knew he could not think of any way to get the princess out he was troubled. The prince went to the witch's house and asked her what to do. The witch told the prince to go to the magic sunflower. The prince thanked the witch and started on his journey. The prince walked about three miles until he saw a wonderful sunflower. The prince asked the sunflower what to do. The sunflower told the prince at twelve o'clock to fly into the princess' window but not before or after twelve o'clock. The prince said, "But I cannot fly." The sunflower said, "When you want to fly say 'Magic sunflower fly in the princess' window.' When you want to go to the ground say, 'Magic sunflower down to the ground,' and you will be taken to the ground." The prince thanked the sunflower and started back to the castle. At twelve o'clock the prince said, "Magic sunflower, fly into the princess' window." Just as he spoke these words he found himself flying through the air.

When he stood on his feet again he was in the princess' room. The princess was lying on the bed asleep. He picked her up and said, "Magic sunflower, down to the ground." Immediately they were taken to the ground.

When the princess awoke she was in the arms of the prince. She knew she was safe. So they married and lived happily ever after.

TOPAZ THE PIRATE
Prize Winner

Topaz was a bold pirate leader who had many treasures in a cave on the Atlantic Coast. One day Topaz sighted a ship which proved to be a Spanish ship carrying treasure to Spain.

He ordered the deck to be cleared for action and had all the cannons loaded. Each man was armed with a pistol, sword and cutlass.

The Spanish ship, seeing it was no use running away, as they would be caught anyway, did the same.

Topaz's cannons were fired first because they had better cannons and could shoot farther. But they did not hit their aim. The first couple of shots were wild from both ships. Then the cannons of Topaz roared and tore down a mast, which fell with a crash, killing or injuring a few men. Then the other ship's cannons barked. The result was a hole in the side of the ship, and a rent in one of the sails. Again the cannons roared, sending forth a deadly volley which struck below the water line, causing a hole that could not be mended and tearing down another mast.

In this plight the Spanish knew they would be shot or drowned so they surrendered.

Topaz took all the treasure aboard his ship, and the other ship sank.

FIRE!

Driving down a lovely broad boulevard on a bright moonlight night on the way home from a merry party.

The distant moans of the fire engine on the air, rushing toward us and growing in its eerie shriek. Automobiles hastily drawn to the curb as the oncoming fire chariots, three of them, claim the road. The rush and whirl and clangs as they pass.

Automobile loads of festive humans gasping with excitement. And, with one mind, engines are started, machines turned and we all speed off after the fire engines to "see the fire."

There it is, a large three-story wooden house, sheltered behind tall old trees, back from the street—one of the old and once fashionable homes of the city. Smoke is gushing out of the upstairs windows. Human voices are screaming. The festive automobiles line up on the dark side streets. Street cars halt at each block on either side of the fire.

It seems to take an incredibly long time to get the fire apparatus working and the fine hoses in action. Firemen rush into the building. People rush wildly out carrying all sorts of queer bundles.

All Want to See

And all the while an ever increasing audience gathers from everywhere, laughing, excited, chattering gaily—nearly all in party clothes.

A dreadful piercing shriek from the house. Flames spurt with flashing hungry licks. Firemen place ladders, climb them swiftly, break in windows and disappear into the smoke that gushes from them. The roof is all on fire now and the moonlight is dimmed in the fierce blaze of the house.

A woman is carried out moaning and struggling. She is trying to cry out but cannot.

The wet spray from the hoses now playing on the fire sprinkles the crowd. Frisky little cries from the women. Amused laughs from the men.

The woman that was carried out has found her voice. She is shrieking that her sick husband is still in the house. She tries to rush back, but firemen prevent her.

"Stand back there we'll get him—maybe," shouts a fireman.

"Oh my God, oh, my God!" screams the woman over and over again.

"Gee, I trod in that mud with my new white shoes," giggles a girl in a fairy party frock.

"Gosh, it's some fire, isn't it?" says a man's voice lustfully.

"Oh my God! He can't move. I had to carry him out of his bath this morning," shrieks the woman—trying once more to rush back into the burning house.

A few awed half-clad people are standing by pathetic little bundles on the side walk. A small terrified boy is clinging to the shrieking woman now. Gasping firemen carrying out the sick man. He is unconscious. The woman closes her shrieks and rushes to them.

"Oh Charlie dear, Charlie dear," she sobs as the firemen brush her aside as they carry him to the next door lawn.

Horrified faces at the windows of nearby houses as neighbors see their homes jeopardized. Men in pajamas excitedly get-

Women stark with fear.

"I wouldn't a-missed this for anything," gurgles a vivacious woman's voice.

The ambulance has arrived. They get the sobbing woman and the unconscious man into it. The fire is under control now. It dies down as the wail of the ambulance is lost in the distance.

Neighbors are offering refuge to the people with the pathetic bundles. The crowd begins to thin and automobiles speed off into the night.

The last merry party is going now.

"Gee, that was some fire. I'd hate to have missed it," said a youth.

"Yeah, but ma'll be mad at me, for getting home so late—gosh, it's past twelve," giggles a girlish voice.

It was all over.

The Rescued Woman Screams

My Favorite Stories by IRVIN S. COBB

Inquiry Regarding the Authors

The old-time repertoire actor had been looking for a job for many a day, trying to keep up appearances with his one carefully pressed but well-worn suit, and subsisting on his knowledge of where the largest meal for forty cents could be found.

When he was down to his last penny somebody told him of a vacancy in a small-town stock company thirty miles away and he borrowed the money to pay his railroad fare thither.

The resident stage manager rubbed his hands gleefully at sight of the applicant.

"By gosh, I'm glad you turned up," he said, "you're just the man and just the type. We're going into rehearsal today for next week's bill, which is where I need you."

"Modern play, I suppose?" inquired the newcomer, thinking of his one suit and mindful of course of the rule that stock actors must furnish their own costumes.

"Sure," said the manager, "modern society drama."

"That's good," declared the old-timer, feeling much cheered. "I presume then that a simple garb will be ample?"

"Well, let's see now just what wardrobe you will need," said his new boss. "In the first act you will require a suit of tweeds. You are a rich mine owner. The English syndicate calls you to London and so, in the middle of the act, you have to make a change for a suit that you would wear on a train. Also, as you have an ocean trip ahead of you, there must be something characteristic in the way of a long ulster. Possibly you might wear the ulster and carry a lighter coat.

"The second act finds you in the smoking room of Lord Worcestershire's mansion. You are telling the Englishman about the mine, and, as it is in the evening you will be in full dress, naturally.

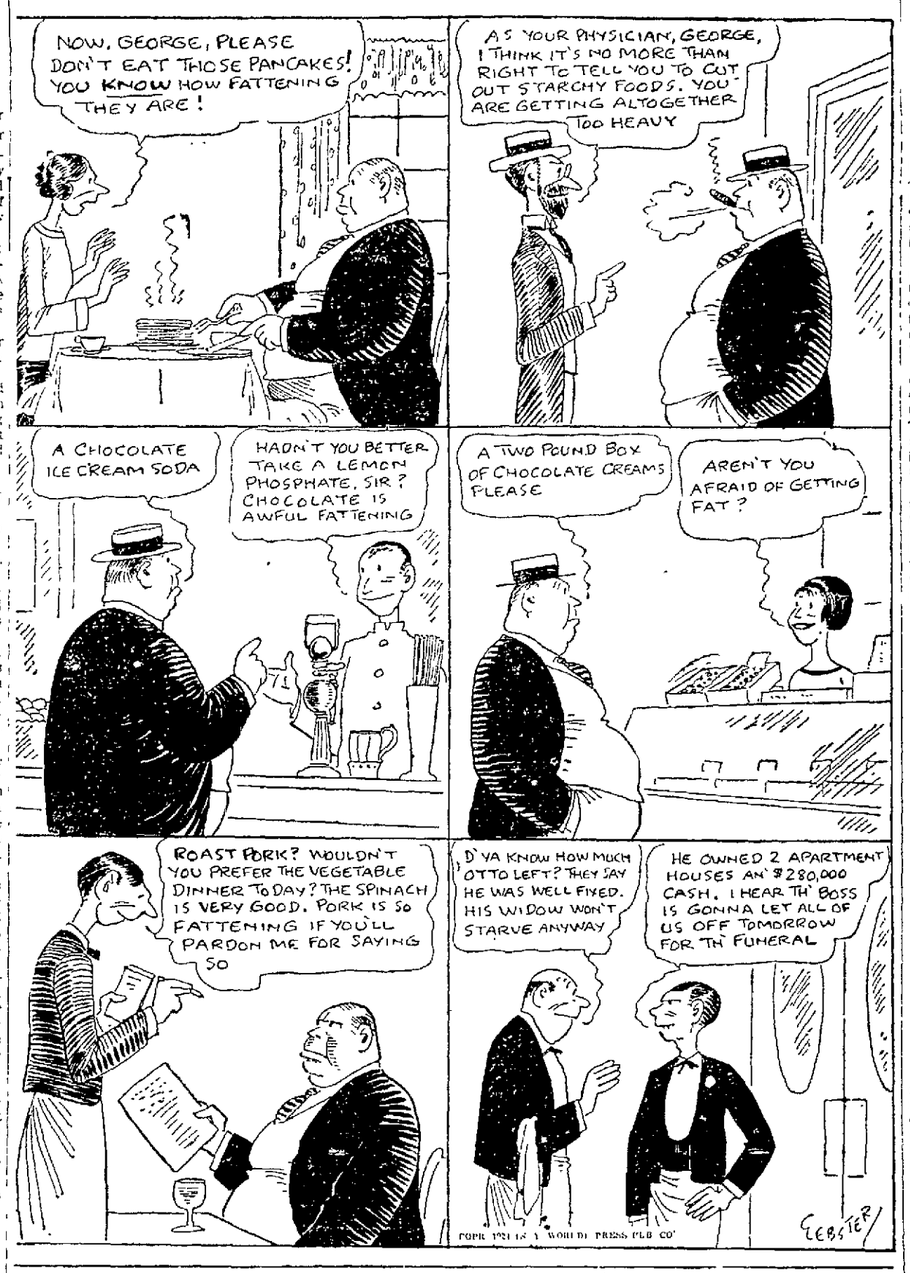

"The third act shows his lordship's yacht anchored at Ostend, and here again your dress must be precise. I would suggest white flannel trousers, blue jacket, white shoes and something classy in the way of a cap.

"This takes us to the fourth act, the scene of which is the breakfast room of a country house. It isn't necessary for me to tell you how to dress the part in this act. It is simply a matter of looking the part—rich mine owner, etc.; not letting any Englishman show you up in the matter of clothes."

"Say," demanded the veteran who wrote the show—Hart Schaffner & Marx?"

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy ---By Webster

CHRISTINE of the HUNGRY HEART

by KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE STORY SO FAR.

After a few years of marriage Christine Knight, young, beautiful and rich, realizes that she is desperately unhappy. However because she does not believe in divorce, she decides to make the best of her life with her adored little daughter Betty Lou and her openly bored and neglectful husband, Stuart. So she and Dr. Alan Montcagle, who have recently met, and found themselves in love with each other decide not to see each other again. Then one day Stuart, driving with the woman whom gossip calls his mistress, runs into his mother's car, and almost kills Christine. Alan Montcagle hurries to her side, and by working night and day, pulls her back to life. She decides to divorce her husband and marry Alan.

CHAPTER XIX
Steps Toward Freedom.

Resolutely, quietly and always with the singing joy of the beloved and the confessedly-loving woman in her heart Christine set about the steps that would free her from the hated name of Knight, and for the new honor of becoming Alan's wife.

On the day she left the hospital the famous surgeon left Washington, and he do not return. In the dignified activities of young Mrs. Knight he had no part. The papers recorded her application for divorce with mild comments, but even Chilsie's closest friends did not speak to her of it for her manner forbade all comment and all discussion.

"But what an extraordinary business this marriage is!" she wrote to Alan, in one of the long letters that went to and fro. "It is the most delicate, the most illusive of all human relationships, and yet even when the whole world knows—as in my case—that love and respect and conventionality have been absolutely outraged, and shattered, made null and void, two reasonable human beings, like Stuart and myself, just as well able to decide for ourselves as any other jury or judge in the world, must go through this painful time of giving evidence, and submitting to the stupidest cross-examinations and delays!

But I see daylight now. Dan tells me that there will be no delays.

It is the first thing on the calendar on the fourth, and can be settled Dan says, in five minutes, and then I'll write, and plan to come up immediately. Much better than having you come here—I want to be married, and simply disappear. Here everyone knows me, and everyone will be watching. It's all so stupid, and it makes one so self-conscious.

"I hope you're experiencing the utter serenity of spirit that I am. Sometimes I imagine your worrying, as to the effect of a woman and baby—a family full-fledged, upon your quiet bachelor menage. And then I say to myself, 'Is it true? Does Alan Montcagle the big man that I loved before less than a year ago, really and truly love me?'

"So answer this question carefully, when you write. Yes, I know Doctor Vianney's name, on the chemists' books, and am thrilled to think that he is your friend. Is the wife French, too?

"We're deliciously comfortable, here at the hotel, Cordelia is a real comfort, and of course I feel disgracefully rich. Stuart's mother insisted upon the larger figure, and with that, and my rent to make me feel like a robber, you may expect to see me making port under the Jolly Roger, when I come up! I think Mrs. Knight felt I was conceding a good deal, when I said that I would really lend them Betty-Lou two or three, or four, times a year. But she is the only grandchild and apt to remain so, and they do love her so. Of course they don't realize yet that you are so definitely in my plans. I imagine Mrs. Knight thinks the affair at a dead-lock. She touched me when she thanked me about Betty-Lou—poor old lady, she was a bad mother to her son, but I felt sorry for her.

"Enter the hair dresser. I have to stop. God bless you always, my own dear, dearest boy, and make me a good wife to you!"

Alan Montcagle read this letter twice, and kissed it more than twice, and put it away with wet eyes. She grew sweeter and sweeter, this Chris of his. Bitter winter still locked in the city, but he felt some mysterious inner spring time flood his heart with perfume and greenness, and a sort of heady sweetness that was at once strong and infinitely weak.

In the cold, blue late afternoon light he drove slowly up through the swarming streets near the Queensboro Bridge, and into a quiet back water of a street that hung just above the river.

He was standing, five minutes later, in the setting of square piano and potted ferns, and shabby books and green student lamp, and watchful canary and mismatched, comfortable chairs and rugs, when Kate Vianney came briskly in.

"Well, Alan—I expected this! Sit down—and let's have the confession this instant!"

Alan laughed and flushed.

"Now what have you got into your head, Kate?"

"That your pretty Mrs. Knight is free," she answered briskly, "and that you're going to be married, almost at once'"

"Very well," Alan admitted resignedly, "since you're so smart!"

"Oh, not really, Alan!" Mrs. Vianney said, with a changed color, and in a changed tone.

"Well—Thursday? Or perhaps Friday?"

"But Alan, not really—!" the woman murmured, coldly and quietly, all her flash and sparkle gone. She set back in her chair. "Well, that's news," she said heavily.

"News that you expected," he reminded her.

"Well, yes—of course! But not so soon!" Mrs. Vianney fell silent for a few seconds, when she said abruptly, "Congratulations, Alan. I'm horrid to be just—a little—sorry!"

"You're not really sorry," he assured her, smiling.

"No, of course not. But we've had a wonderful friendship—and a woman needs a friend like you—to be the better wife!"

"Chris asked me if you were French." Alan told her. "All women are French, I believe."

"And all men Turks," she countered ruefully. "Well, so it is to be at once."

"You'll be her friend, Kit?" he asked, standing up to go.

"Kit!" she echoed. "I suppose you call her that?" Isn't it just my luck that she should have my name!"

"No, I call her Chris. It fits her, too."

"Don't go Alan. Emil may be in at any moment now."

"I must. But I'll see you soon."

"Oh, surely!" she said it composedly. And walking with him to the garden gate, she talked of her sons, one stepson, studying medicine, abroad, and the other due home from school at any moment now.

But when he had gone she stood at the gate for a long time, bare headed and staring blankly down the empty street, into a suddenly empty world.

Two days later Christine quietly left Washington. She went with Cordelia and the baby to the old Knight home, and had perhaps half an hour's talk with Stuart's mother and father. Then she kissed Betty-Lou goodbye, and went out to a waiting cab, and at noon she was surveying the moving environs of the city from a Pullman window. She reached New York in a swirl of falling snow storm at five, and went straight to a hotel.

There was a telephone in the big room, but Chris only looked at it once or twice before she set about the business of brushing, bathing, resting, making herself fresh and sweet. She trembled a little as she went to and fro, and there was a continual happy flutter at her heart.

It was a quarter [illegible] she was finally arrayed in the crepe-de-chine with the dull blue linings in the wide sleeves, and the broad black hat with the one great rose upon it, and the blue repeated in the lining of its brim; her hands were bare of rings but there was a chain of pearls about her round beautiful young throat, and big pearls showed under the curving shining swoop of hair over each ear.

She sat down at the telephone. This time there was no delay.

"Alan——?"

"My darling. Where are you?"

"At the hotel. And about to go down to dine. Could you dine with me?"

"I—Chris, you mean you're in town?"

"Right here. Not a mile away from you!"

"Do you know what tomorrow is?"

"No—no. But I suspect!"

"Any day," he said. "At four. Does that suit you? Chris, I'm dressing. But I can be there in fifteen minutes."

"Don't hurry, dear. We have—we have all the rest of our lives."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

By Mildred Marshall

CLAIRE.

Claire was originally a masculine name. Generally spelled Clare, it was first used in England to name a Norman family who came from one of the villages of St. Clair. "Red De Clare," stout Gloucester's earl, the foe of Henry III, was one of them.

The son of Red De Clare married into the House of Geraldin in Ireland and received from Edward I a grant of lands, now known as County Clare. His heiress carried the county to the De Burghs and their heiress married Lionel, son of Edward III, thus making the county a dukedom and creating the title, the Duke of Clarence.

The feminine form is said to have arisen in Italy as Chiara and spread into France, where it was immediately changed into Claire. Though preferring the original Clare, the English accepted Claire and it gained some vogue there, but in this country it was adopted with enthusiasm and has undergone widespread usage.

The diamond is Claire's talismanic jewel. It promises her brilliant attainments, magnetism and courage. Saturday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

The Well-Dressed Man By Beaunash — Correct Clothes

STITCHED-BACK GOLF JACKETS.

The worst thing that could befall men's dress would be to standardize it down to the level of toothpicks and vitrified bricks, chair casters and corn plasters; bakers' rolls and telegraph poles. Style is like a table d'hote—its attraction lies in a constant change of subject. Take away personality and the whim of the wearer, and men's dress becomes a mere uniform akin to that worn by "the linsey-woolsy million" generations ago, while "the gentry" dressed in broadcloth.

Only in an elemental sense are clothes a covering. They are an expression or personality, art, taste, fashion, culture, good form. They refine a man and his manners. Style raises an ideal, and ideals are splendid things, because they make us look up.

For some time, the fashionable golf suit has been made with a perfectly plain back devoid of flaps, pleats, yokes and all other fussy establishments. It was the inevitable backward swing of the pendulum of style toward that simplicity which befits the true sportsman. However, there are some who fancy just a touch of decoration to differentiate the country jacket more sharply from the town jacket. Hence the stitched-back model, pictured in the accompanying sketch.

This style is set off with horizontal rows of stitching down the small of the back, which is ventless. The front is finished with the conventional patch pockets. There are various types of this model, all of which are correct, but no more so than the unstitched, plain back jacket which many men favor and which is procurable everywhere.

In choosing your golf or country suit be sure to select a soft finished, not hard-nap, material, so that it will fall into easy, leisurely lines and hang with fullfold drapery. The suit with a waistcoat is preferable to that without, as it may be worn right up to the end of the golfing season when the wind whistles across the course.

Our CHEERY CHUM

A BAD SURPRISE.

"Maybe the old woman will be gone to town or something when we go to Marjorie's house," said Betty hopefully, "and then we'll get to see her after all."

The three friends, Betty and Roger and Billy, slowed up as they came to the queer little cottage where Marjorie was just the same as a prisoner.

Neither Marjorie nor the old woman was in sight as they came up, but—"Look!" exclaimed Betty. "That's something new!"

There in the front yard a big fierce looking collie was chained up. A collie pup played nearby. The big dog's chain was long enough so h could roam over most of the yard.

"Oh dear!" wailed Betty. "Now we'll never be able to rescue Marjorie. I bet the old woman got that dog to scare us off!"

Color the dogs yellowish tan. The collar, which should be pink, fits around the pup's neck. Next week the Cut-outs will have more adventures with the old lady in the queer little cottage.

Use Lemons to Whiten Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement.

How to Write 'Local Lafs'

By the Local Laf Editor

Man in ridiculing women's love of finery forgets, of course, that in the days of savagery it was the dominant male that wore the brightest feathers and the largest rings in his nose.

Man idealizes the statesmen of the statue with the baggy trousers, while women idolize the clothes model. These extreme viewpoints never meet, cannot be harmonized and results in a constant misunderstanding by males of the inherent feeling of inferiority in the female that makes it necessary to bolster up her ego with paint, fine feathers and baubles.

Dress is a product of the emotions—inferiority complex mostly, added to vanity, envy and a desire to create envy in others. Because it is an emotion, it no more consistent than other human emotions which burn hot one moment and cold the next.

Injured Woman: I didn't notice the make of car that knocked me down, but the driver wore a beehive hat, trimmed with pink chiffon and a motoring coat of imitation fur.

As is the case of a vast majority of jests, the humor here depends upon exaggeration — exaggeration of woman's love of clothes.

Deaconess: What is the parson's wife doing to bring people to church?

Parishioner: She wears a different gown every Sunday.

Woman's squeamishness about her age is a foible that man never forgets.

A diplomat is defined as a man who remembers a woman's birthday, but forgets her age.

The jester takes a crack at the argain seeking female in the following:

Woman (at ticket office): How much is the fare?

Agent: One way ticket, $2.50.

Woman (absent-mindedly): Make it $2.48 and I'll take it.

Feminine disregard of time is proverbial. Father says he will be down in a minute. That is 60 seconds. Mother says she will be down in a minute. That means 600 seconds.

Modern girls come in for a wallop in the following:

Cynic: A debutante is a girl who sleeps all morning, drinks tea all afternoon and walks backward all night.

Gossiping women were famous and infamous long before Shakespeare made us acquainted with the medieval variety of shrew. Women's habit of maligning an acquaintance one minute and kissing her the next and of bursting into slanderous conversation about a friend the instant her back is turned has come down through the generations as a standard trait.

Mrs. Upleigh: I'm calling on Mrs. Wallaby Wombat. I know she'll have something terribly interesting to tell me. She's just quarreled with her best friend.

Wife Alleges Mate Liked R. S. Too Well

An alleged affinity designated as "R. S." is named in the divorce complaint filed by Mrs. Ellen McFarlane against Charles E. McFarlane. The wife says that her husband has associated with "R. S." for the past two years and has shown "undue affection" for her.

Mrs. McFarlane asserts her husband used vile language to her, falsely accused her of taking money belonging to him and has frequently struck her. Last Friday she procured a warrant for his arrest upon a charge of battery, Mrs. McFarlane says. They were married in 1914. Mrs. McFarlane asks for $100 a month alimony and lists property in East Oakland as belonging to her.

Acidopolus Meets His Waterloo

Bacillus acidopolus germinates in the food particles that lodge on and between the teeth and throws off an acid which is the cause of most tooth decay. This acid corrodes the hard tooth enamel, causing a tiny abrasion which grows bigger and deeper as the bacteria colony increases, thus a cavity is formed. You can now defeat this bacillus before it has a chance to do its mischief. YOU CAN FIGHT TOOTH DECAY EVERY DAY by using Myrrohl which owes its great virtue to the fact that it dissolves and washes out the greasy food particles before they can start to incubate the acid producing bacteria.

At the same time, Myrrohl's THREE ACTIVE HEALING AGENTS—gum myrrh, red gum and zinc chloride—all of widely recognized medicinal value—harden and heal the gums, stimulate the flow of saliva and war against harmful germs.

Myrrohl is a pleasant tasting, no-grit dentifrice that makes teeth pearly white and frees smokers' teeth from nicotine stains.

Japanese Discipline Military Objectors

TOKYO, Aug. 11.—The Japanese army has a special disciplinary corps for dealing with conscripts who fight their compulsory service too bitterly or who show leanings toward socialistic or radical ideas, according to Lieutenant General Issei Ugaki, minister of war, speaking to the house of representatives recently. General Ugaki did not indicate the methods used, but said the results had been satisfactory.

"The esprit of the army is not likely to suffer from such elements, although it is true that conscripts of such refractory turn of mind are increasing in number," said General Ugaki. "The army at first attempted to avoid the conscription of such men, but we have found it better to enlist them and then try to make them see the error of their ways. It is also true that the number of men who try to evade military service is increasing, but the army authorities are doing their best to remedy this tendency."

LOSS OF DOUBLE HEADER COSTS OAKS SERIES IN SOUTH

St. Louis Cardinals, Well Up in American League Race, Now Threaten Position of Three Leading Teams

MAILS, BOEHLER ARE VICTIMS AS TIGERS TAKE PAIR OF GAMES

Homer By D. Murphy Breaks Up Morning Session in Ninth Inning; Vernon Sluggers Maul Oak Hurlers in Slugfest in Afternoon.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—It is a long road that has no turning, at least so it is said, and the up and coming Oaks, unchecked since June 10 when they started their remarkable streak, which resulted in winning seven series and tieing one, against Vernon, were halted yesterday when the battling Bengals scored a double victory over the Howardites by scores of 5 to 3 and 16 to 3.

From the viewpoint of these same Tigers from Vernon, it was altogether fitting and proper that it should fall to their lot to check the Acorns' winning streak which has lasted over a period of two months and has seen the Oaklanders battle their way from the cellar to third place, from which they were dislodged by the double win of the Vernonites yesterday.

It is not for a moment to be suspected that the Oaks, having at last lost a series, are throufh—far from it, for the seven games played here this week bear out the claim that the Oaks are in the race and intend to stay in it.

The double setback suffered yesterday found conditions favorable for the home guard and the tribe of Essick proceeded to make the most of the opportunities as they presented themselves.

Mails' Wildness Costly in Morning.

The morning session was a battle from the start, the "Great Walter" Mails, having two victories already to his credit for the week, looking the part of a winning pitcher until the final frame when opportunity knocked at the door of Denny Murphy who responded with a powerful rap over the left garden wall to drive in Pete Schneider.

Wildness in two of the last three innings was responsible for the downfall of Mails. The "Great One" actually outpitched Ken Penner, allowing only seven hits, but six bases on balls and three hit batsmen proved costly in the extreme.

Penner, on the other hand, while touched for eleven bingles, had control of the situation with the exception of the second and seventh frames.

Arlett's Homer Gives Oaks Lead.

Buz Arlett boosted the Oaks into a lead in the second inning when he groomed one of Penner's choicest for a home run.

Penner appeared to be in trouble in the third when Mails and Adams started with singles but Adams was nipped on an attempted double steal, Mails staying put in third while Adams was run down. Whereupon Penner settled down and got out of the hole.

Chadbourne tied the count in the third, leading off with a double and scoring on McCarren's wild throw.

Four bunched hits gave the Oaks a pair in the seventh, Cather and McCarren hitting singles, advancing on Baker's sacrifice and romping home when Mails singled.

The effort of driving in these two runs was evidently too much for Mails, starting the seventh by walking Penner and hitting Warner. Hannah, who batted for Blakesley, walked to fill the sacks. Penner counted on Schneider's sacrifice fly and Denny Murphy's single scored Warner, knotting the count.

Homer in Ninth Broke Up Game.

The ninth found Mails still wild. Pete Schneider taking one in the ribs as a starter. Whereupon, without further ado, D. Murphy delivered his opportune homer and the series was even.

The after luncheon session found Boehler on the hill for the Oaks and the Tigers arrayed in their swat togs. Making merry with the offerings of Boehler and Murchio, who succeeded him, the Bengals had things their own way from the start and Christian won as he pleased, holding the Oaks scoreless until the eighth, when with a fourteen-run lead, he eased up and was nicked for three runs in the last two frames.

Three bunched hits, together with a walk, a sacrifice fly and a double steal, gave the Tigers four in the first frame.

Tiger Sluggers Have Nice Party.

All was peaceful in the second, but in the third Boehler hit Hannah, who advanced on Deal's sacrifice, took third on McDowell's infield hit and scored on Guisto's error.

The fourth was uneventful, but in the fifth Boehler had another bad inning, Deal, McDowell and Griffin hitting singles, Deal scoring. Chadbourne gained first on a fielder's choice and the bases were full when Maderas' throw to second arrived too late.

Boehler lost control at this point and hit Christian, forcing in McDowell. Warner's double chased in Griffin and Chadbourne.

Murchio took up the pitching burden for the visitors in the sixth and escaped trouble until the seventh, when four hits and a walk gave the Tigers five runs.2 A triple by Blakesley and a home run by Menosky were recorded during the inning.

The Oaks had a brief rally in the eighth, Brubaker, Arlett and Cather clouting singles, Brubaker and Arlett counting on Cather's smash. Christian walked Maderas and Read to fill the sacks, but McCarren, hitting for Murchio, fanned.

Harris worked for the Oaks in the eighth and was nicked for two runs, which were not needed. The Oaks scored one in their half of the ninth when Adams tripled and scored on Brubaker's sacrifice fly.

WIN EXTRA INNING GAME.

McCord singled in the thirteenth, stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice hit to pave the way to the victory.

A single by Doughty and a triple by Fraga, put the finishing touches on the win.

Fraga was the heavy hitter of the day, getting four hits, including the triple, while Maddock, McCord and Galeria got three safeties each.

St. Louis May Figure in the American Race

Sensational Spurt of Sisler's Team Gives Them Real Chance For Bunting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A sensational spurt by the St. Louis Browns featured the past week of major league baseball. Winning six out of nine games while the Yankees, Tigers and Senators were breaking about even, Sisler's club entered the charmed circle of serious pennant contenders.

By an odd coincidence Detroit and New York occupy the exact relative positions they held just seven days ago, Cobb's men leading the procession by a one point advantage over the world champions. Washington trails the former by two games and St. Louis follows in fourth place at a distance of two games.

Cleveland also had a very successful week, capturing five out of seven contests and advancing to fifth position, a fraction of a point ahead of Chicago. Boston, losing six out of seven, continued down the toboggan and brought up in the cellar. The Athletics tonight hold down seventh place by a margin of one point.

Cincinnati made National League followers sit up and take notice with a winning drive of six victories in eight starts, concluding the seven-day period with a double triumph over the Giants in yesterday's twin bill.

As Brooklyn did almost as well, however, the Reds failed to oust the Robins from fourth place. The Dodgers won five and lost three. They now trail Chicago by a game and a half and lead Cincinnati by the same margin.

The Giants still rest serenely on the top rung of the ladder with the Pirates seven games and a half to their rear in second place. St. Louis, Philadelphia and Boston follow in sixth, seventh and last positions respectively.

Noteworthy pitching performances were rare in Ban Johnson's circuit during the week just ended. Shocker and Van Gilder of the Browns, each of whom twirled a three-hit game, made the most creditable showing.

Shocker also turned in a five-hit win. Next in order of excellence came Hoyt of the Yankees and Zahniser of the Senators with four safety contests. Baumgartner of the Athletics registered a five-bingle victory and Coveleskie of Cleveland let Boston down with six hits.

National League batters had to face a far higher grade of pitching than the younger circuit hitters. Three-hit performances were turned in by Meadows of the Pirates and Dickerman of the Cardinals and four-hit contests by Vance of Brooklyn, Ring of Philadelphia, Bush of Chicago and Kremer of Pittsburgh.

Kremer also pitched a five-hit game, as did Blake of the Cubs. Those in the six safety class were Bentley of the Giants, Cooper of the Pirates, Luque of the Reds and Dickerman and Stuart of St. Louis.

Ruth, with five homers for the week, hopelessly out-distanced all competitors for champion circuit hitter of the season and raised hopes among his admirers that he may break his record of 59 for a single season. His total now is 38.

Jones Wins For Halcyon Natives

Earle (Fireman) Jones proved invincible, allowing but three scattered hits and striking out ten, and the Halcyon Natives blanked Zinggs 6 to 0 in a game played at Lincoln park, Alameda. The losing team had held one decision over the Natives, who were defeated several weeks ago by Zinggs 6 to 5.

Oakland Elks Easily Defeat Alameda Team

"Speed" Martin Is Invincible Allowing Three Hits to Win 7 to 0.

The Alameda Elks were unable to solve the baffling shoots of "Speed" Martin yesterday, and lost a 7 to 0 contest to the Oakland organization at the Coast League park.

The former big league twirler had the situation well in hand from the start and allowed only three hits, all well separated. Two of the three bingles were garnered by Al Ross, Alameda backstop, and the other safety was cracked out by his brother, Art Ross, who covers the short patch. Both of Al's hits were doubles.

While Martin was making life miserable for the Alameda batters, with the exception of the Ross family, his playmates mauled the shoots of Bud Wales for twelve hits and bunched them for runs in two innings.

The Oaklanders started an offensive in the third inning when Wales issued a walk and Martin, Wille and Fitzsimmons singled. Three of the Oak athletes had crossed the pan before Wales retired the side.

After the third frame, he settled down and pitched good ball until the eighth, when three more hits were incorporated with some errors to score four tallies.

"Toots" Bankhead was the heavy slugger for the winners, getting a double and two singles in five attempts. Martin helped win his own game with his husky hitting. The Oakland hurler smashed two safe ones to score a like number of runs. Denny Willie, Fitzsimmons and Querilo, were also prominent with the willow, each getting a pair of hits off Wales' delivery.

The victory yesterday made the second straight for the Oakland team in the northern division of the Elks' baseball league, the winner of which is to play the winner of the southern division at Catalina Island in September for the California championship.

The next game for the Oakland team will be played against San Francisco at Recreation Park next Sunday, while Alameda will entertain the Sacramento team.

Cobb's Team Steals Lead From Yankees

Tiger Boss Shows Old-Time Speed When He Plifers Bases Four Times.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (By the Associated Press).—Inspired by their gray-bearded manager, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who favored his diamond-weary legs to the extent of stealling only bases, the Detroit Tigers burglarized first place right out of the hands of the Yankees, whom they led today by one point. Washington and St. Louis, both of whom won, advanced to within two and four games, respectively, of the erstwhile pacemakers.

The Tigers wielded the butcher knife for a 13-to-7 triumph. Ty celebrated his second childhood with pilfers of second, third twice and home.

By their 7-to-1 victory the Indians not only tumbled the Yankees out of first place, but passed Chicago into fifth place, as the White Sox lost to Washington. Shaute stopped Ruth and his pals dead in their tracks.

Although they did their best to surrender the game on errors, the St. Louis Browns gratefully accepted a 10-to-8 victory at the insistence of the Athletics.

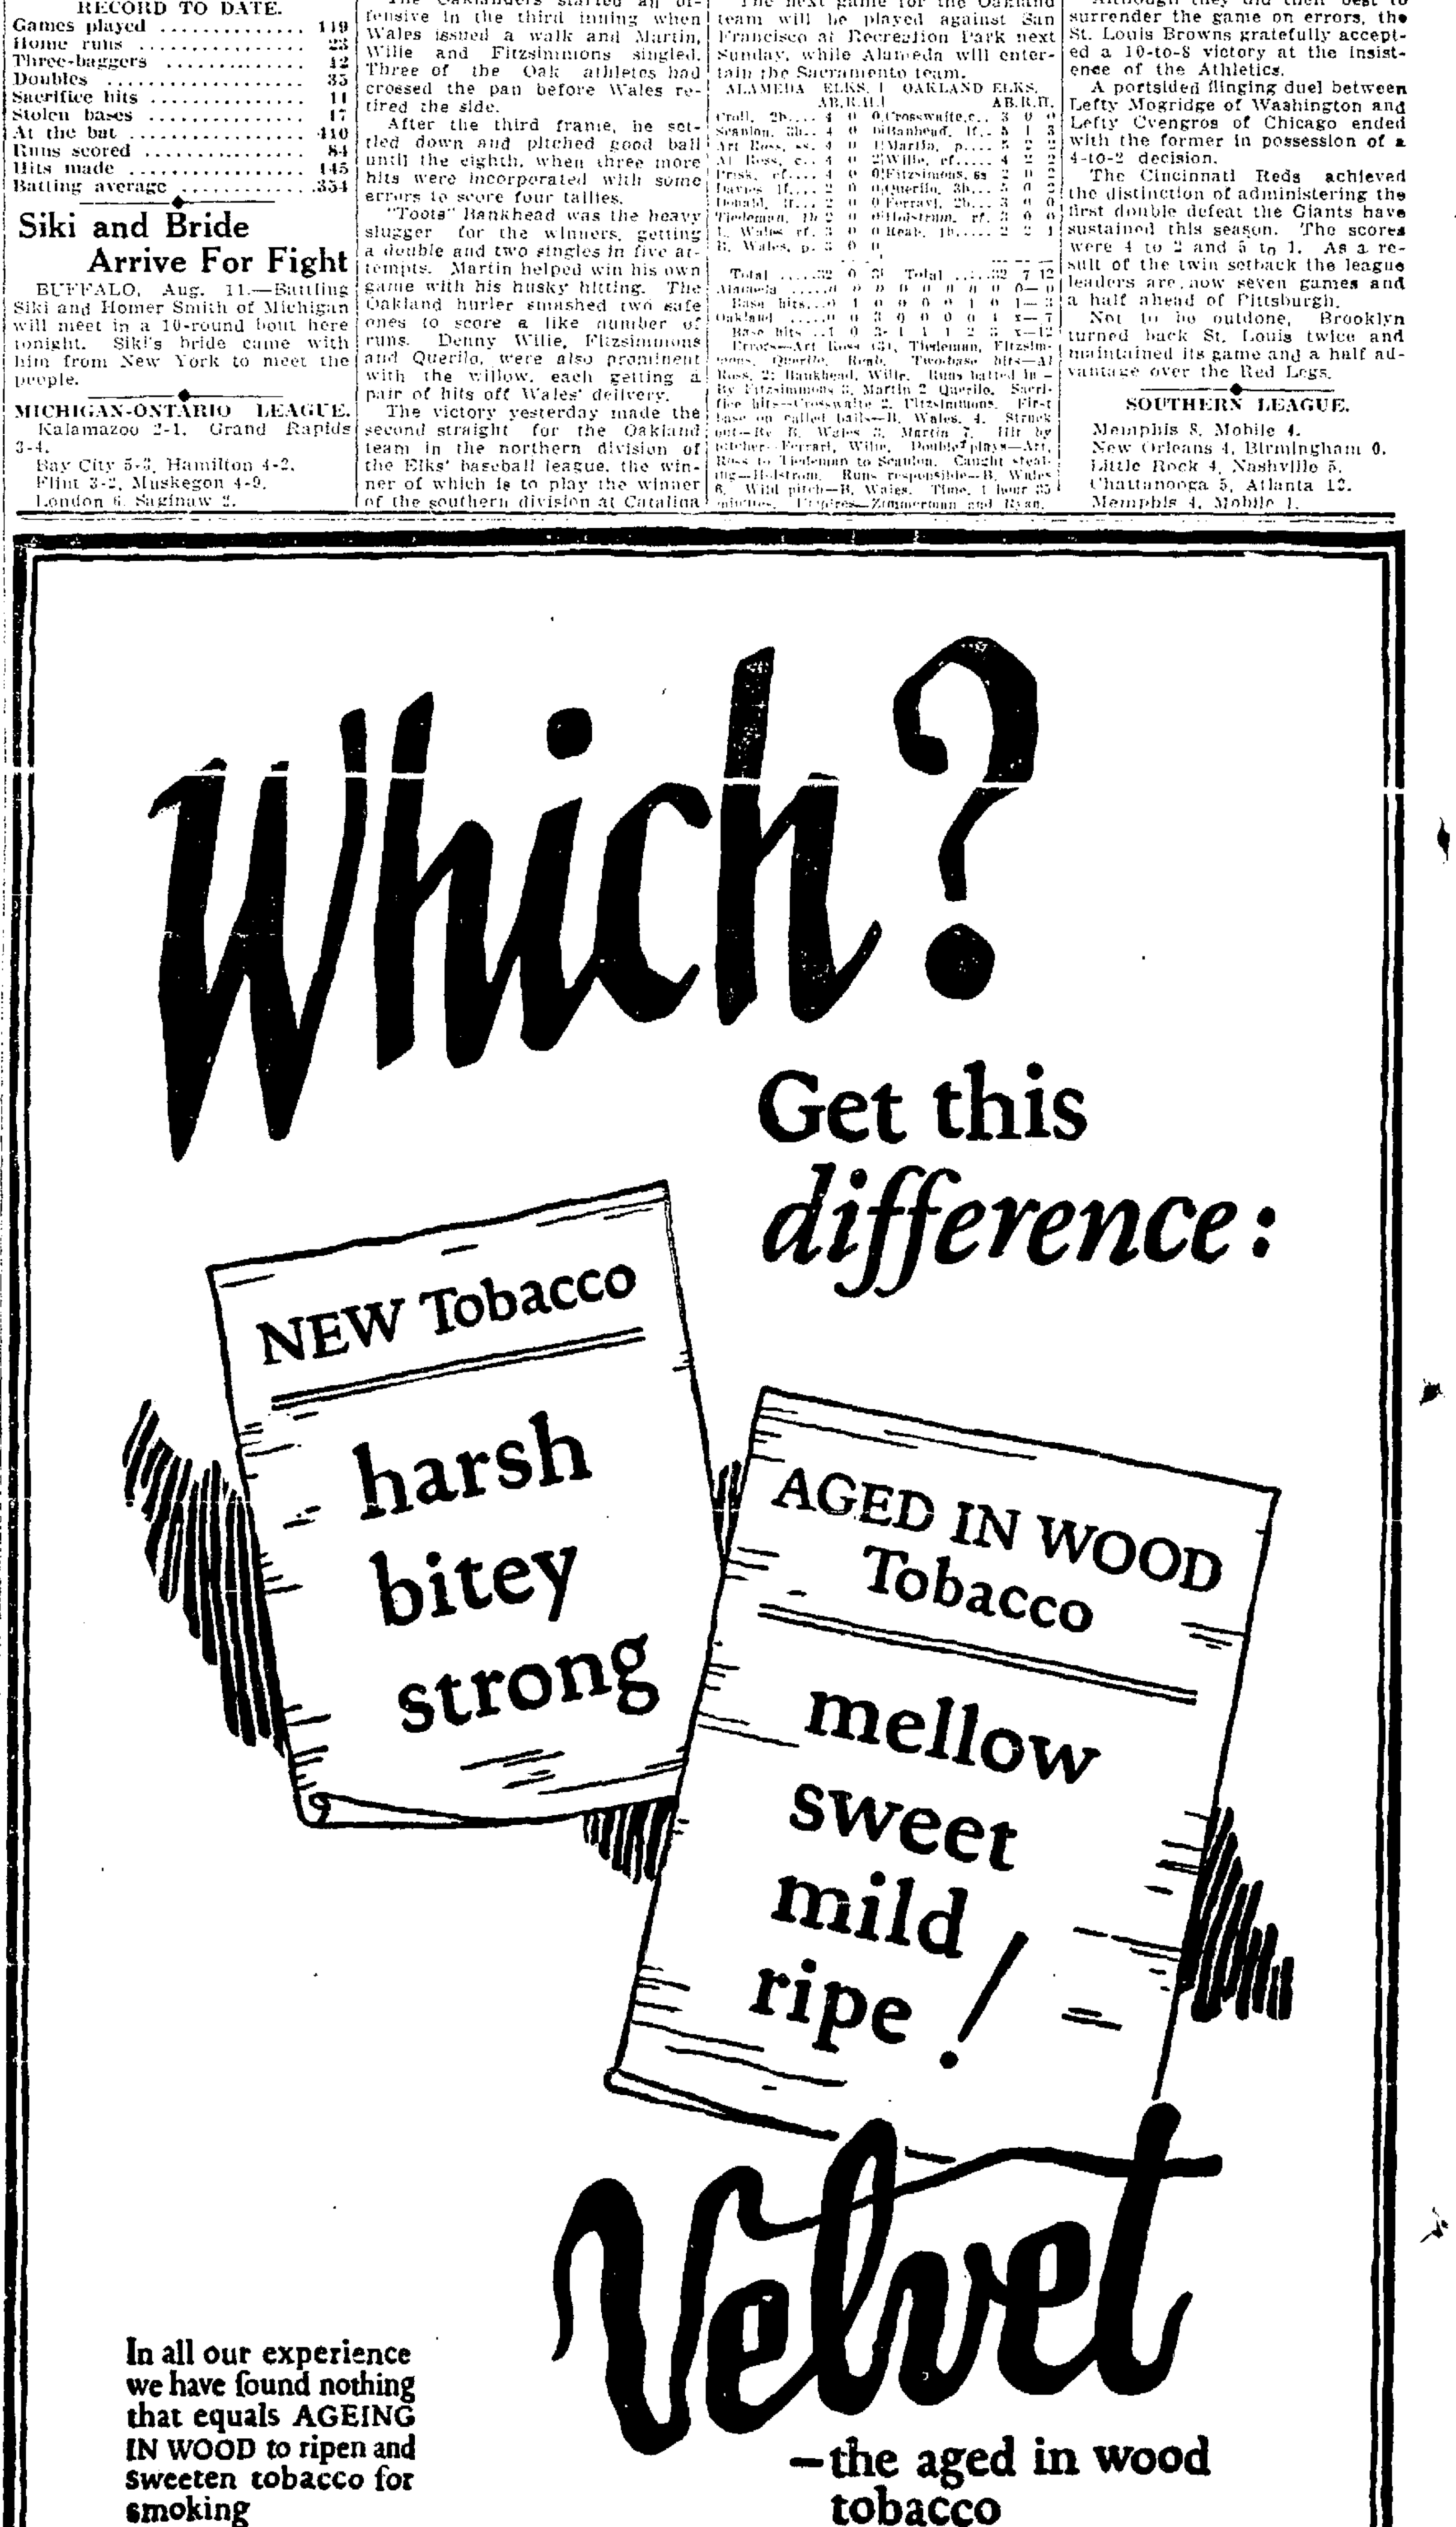

A portsided flinging duel between Lefty Mogridge of Washington and Lefty Cvengros of Chicago ended with the former in possession of a 4-to-2 decision.

The Cincinnati Reds achieved the distinction of administering the first double defeat the Giants have sustained this season. The scores were 4 to 2 and 5 to 1. As a result of the twin setback the league leaders are now seven games and a half ahead of Pittsburgh.

Not to be outdone, Brooklyn turned back St. Louis twice and maintained its game and a half advantage over the Red Legs.

SECOND ANNUAL CITY CHAMPIONSHIP PLANS ALTERED

Jack Dempsey May Be Matched in Championship Fight With Tommy Gibbons; Offer Made By London Syndicate

Tom Gibbons Is Willing to Meet Dempsey

Kearns Considering Offer From London; Champ Would Rather Wait.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Tom Gibbons American light heavyweight, who knocked out Jack Bloomfield Saturday, said this afternoon he was willing to fight Jack Dempsey in London.

Sporting circles were greatly surprised over a cablegram from New York saying that Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, had been approached by an English syndicate with an offer for a fight between the champion and Gibbons in London.

Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, said he would gladly consider such an offer but "does not want a repetition of Shelby."

It is understood here that Dempsey, who has been playing in moving pictures in Los Angeles, will shortly go to New York to give earnest consideration to his next bout.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will be ready to defend his title against the winner of the Firpo-Wills fight if Tex Rickard wants to stage the fight in October, according to a message received from Jack Kearns, his manager.

Kearns wired from Los Angeles that Dempsey would rather wait until next spring to meet the winner but that he was giving up the movies and would be ready to work this fall if the arrangements can be made.

The manager of the champion mentioned a big offer that had been received from a London syndicate for a match between Dempsey and Tom Gibbons and he said it was so large that he would consider it.

Junior Tennis Stars to Meet At Chicago Nets

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Chicago will be host to its first national tennis tournament today when the national junior and boys' events get under way.

George Lott Jr., Chicago's stellar entry, will defend his title as national junior champion for the last time. Another local player will be Emmet Pare, national clay court junior singles and doubles titleholder.

Lott's chief opposition is expected to come from Horace Orser, New York schoolboy and national interscholastic champion.

A week of diversion as well as playing has been planned for the visiting youths. They will be topped off with an exhibition match between William T. Tilden, national champion and A. H. Chapin, Springfield, Mass.

Granston Holman of San Francisco, former national municipal champion, made his debut on turf courts by defeating Robert E. Elliot of Baltimore, 6-1, 6-4. Unaccustomed to grass, Holman had trouble at first but superior net work finally won him the match.

Alan Hartington of Los Angeles defeated Harris of Detroit by default.

L. A. Swimmers Win Silver Gate Races

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 11.—Two Los Angeles Athletic club swimmers, Viola Hartman and Tom Blake, won first honors in the annual Silver Gate Channel swim across the entrance to the harbor here yesterday, Miss Hartman leading the field of 59 girls with ease to break the record of Florence Chambers 1925 winner, by more than one and one-half minutes while Blake clipped the record for the men's event which has been standing since 1920.

Miss Hartman's time was 7 32 and the old record was 9 11 2-5.

Blake's time was 6 49. The old record was held by Charles Shields of the San Diego Rowing club at 6 50 1-5.

Ft. Riley Winner of Polo Championship

FORT SNELLING, Minn., Aug. 11.—The second cavalry team of Fort Riley, Kan., yesterday won the class A championship of the northwest polo tournament, defeating the Fort Snelling Blacks, 18 to 5.

It was the visitors' second win of the tournament. They captured the opening contest last week from the Blacks 18 to 7.

Boxes Wednesday

JIMMY DARRAH, a clever performer, who will don the mitts at the Auditorium Wednesday night against Dynamite George.

WITH THE KNIGHTS of the GLOVES

BY BOB SHAND.

The customers who attend the box-fighting festivities at the Auditorium Wednesday night should see some fancy stepping when Billy Wallace and Bud Ridley hook up in the main event. Ridley has not appeared here in a long time but he was quite a favorite when he was knocking 'em silly three years ago and he has been going good in the northwest. Wallace has been boxing preliminaries and special events but merit must be recognized so Billy found himself at the top of this week's card. Few four rounders can box as well as Wallace and if he continues to time his punches he will be a dangerous contender for short bout honors.

Dynamite George, an old favorite, is back again and will hook up with Jimmy Darrah in the special event. The Dynamiter has been boxing around Montana under another name for the past two years, but he can still sock. At that George would rather be known as McQueenie, which is his real name, as he thinks the customers expect too much from a man whose name is Dynamite. "If you don't tear in and knock your man silly they say you are a false alarm," said McQueenie the other day. However, the fans know him better as Dynamite George and that name will have to stick.

George had a legitimate excuse for changing his cognomen but there was no excuse for the phoney names that were rung into that late lamented "heavyweight tournament." Coal heavers were taken off their jobs and sent to some country towns under assumed names and disguised as boxers. A few nights later they would appear in some other town under other names and would do their stuff as per schedule. Only a timely expose of the trickery saved the game from ruin. The last of the contenders for the championship" has been hammered into submission and the county fans are being entertained with legitimate bouts again.

Pickels Martin, the funny gent, comes back Wednesday night to do a bit of clowning with Vic Morrison. Pickles knows that the clown stuff gets over. He can box when he wants to.

Eddie Roberts, who defeated Gene Cline and Young Dudley, is another good boxer on this week's card. He meets Sailor Smith.

Charlie Harvey wants to come west again with Billy Wells, Johnny Brown, a bantamweight, and George West, an English middleweight. Wells has been visiting his old home in England but will return to New York this week. Charlie is open for offers for the three.

Championship Flight to Be Increased; Golfers Should Enter at Once.

By W. D. McNICOLL

Entries for the second annual city of Oakland championship, which takes placed over Labor Day week end, are being received daily and promise to exceed the previous record both in quality and quantity.

R. P. Jackson, present city champion, will have a difficult problem on hand to defend his title against the galaxy of starters that will be lined up when the final entry list is closed on August 25.

The committee has decided to increase the number of competitors to be invited to compete in the championship flight from 32 to 64, as the former number might possibly exclude several promising players who are being developed at our local clubs who deserve to have an opportunity to show what they can accomplish in match play against the better known championship flight contenders.

In order to stimulate interest and development all available talent in the Bay district the tournament committee have decided to allow defeated players in the first round match in the championship flight, which will be concluded on Saturday, August 30, to continue in match play as a second flight of 32 on the succeeding days of play.

This new scheme of play which has been submitted to the leading golfers at Lake Chabot, Claremont, Berkeley and Sequoyah has received their immediate approval.

R. P. Jackson, B. J. Buffham, R. F. Hoffman, Jay B. Nash, Walter L. Johnstone and other leading municipal players are enthusiastic supporters of the new scheme of play suggested.

Dr. C. H. Walter, Dr. J. H. Stineman, Claud Barton, F. E. McGurrin and C. H. Burman, who are members of Sequoyah and Lake Chabot, are satisfied that a satisfactory solution has been arrived at in handling the city championship contest.

Clair Goodwin and Cecil Putnam have already forwarded their official entries, and practically all of the Sequoyah first flighters will be included in the seeded and balloted first round of match play.

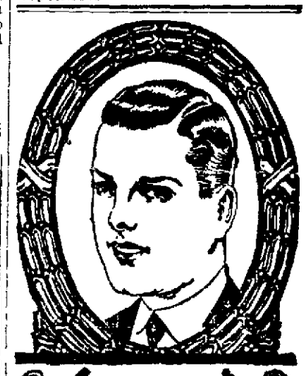

Invitations to Claremont and Berkeley's low handicap players to compete in the championship flight have been forwarded and a representative entry from Oakland's premier golf club and the newest East Bay club is anticipated.

In addition to the championship flight of 64, the losing 32 players, of which will be constituted a second flight, and as many other eights of 16 as the course can accommodate, will be arranged and grouped according to their official records or club handicaps.

Official starting times will be arranged during the entire period of the tournament, the committee is receiving the cooperation and assistance of Jay B. Nash, Fred Fry and his assistants at Lake Chabot, and with the course and greens in such excellent condition the 1924 city championship of Oakland promises to get a high mark of efficiency.

CONTINUING WORK OF ESTABLISHING COMMUNITY PROPERTY LAW.

Californians, aware that federal recognition of the community property law of this state will mean the refund of millions of dollars paid as income taxes, are naturally interested in the outcome.

In the efforts to secure a favorable action, and in its expressions of the belief that the law of California should be recognized and the position of former Attorney General Daugherty upheld in the matter, Oakland has played a leading part.

This city has been alive to the situation from the day when Attorney General Stone withdrew for further consideration the opinion of his predecessor. One of the first organizations in the state to act, the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, on May 30, 1924, followed that withdrawal with a telegram to Senator Shortridge expressing opposition to the recalling of the Daugherty decision which took into account the California law and pledged itself to take further steps.

The fight was carried direct to Attorney-General Stone. On July 8, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce took action similar to that of the Oakland chamber, filing a brief in support of the Daugherty opinion.

There is now a prospect that, after a review of the situation and a personal study of the California law and the points concerned, Attorney-General Stone will decide as did Mr. Daugherty. In withdrawing the decision he did not express the belief that it was either correct or incorrect but evidenced a desire to acquaint himself with the facts. Those facts have been supplied him.

Whatever results will follow will come out of those deliberations of the Attorney General. What the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and other California organizations have done is to aid in presenting to him the necessity for a decision and to join in the expression of the conviction that the community property law, as enacted and administered in California, is in every way entitled to the respect and recognition of the Federal Government.

In continuing the work of esiablishing the community property law, other organizations which have not yet joined their expressions with those of the Oakland chamber may well do so.

MEXICO TRANQUIL.

The prospect of a peaceful succession in the Mexican presidency so far seems good. As voting goes in that country General Calles was elected overwhelmingly, and immediately the result was declared started on a European tour, with the announcement that he would be away till inauguration time, which is December. This is understood to be a precaution—to avoid being drawn into controversy, or being made the center of agitation or the target of marplots.

The new president gets classed as a radical, but that classification is considerably different there from its status here. The Old Regime considers anybody who would innovate upon the order established under Spanish domination to be a radical. The great issue in Mexico, to which the new president is committed, is the agrarian issue. The land is largely held in great estates, compared with which our American big farms are patches. The agricultural workers are peons who have become abject dependents of the estates. The agrarian policy, which has been in process of development for a decade, provides for the division of land so that the peons will each have an allotment and thus become individual population. In case the areas in recent times absorbed by the barons prove insufficient, more land may be expropriated from the smaller haciendas, to be paid for in government bonds at ten per cent above the assessed valuation.

In this policy President Calles finds himself confronted by a relentless opposition. His enemies maintain that he cannot carry out his agrarian and other policies, but it is considerably believed that there is no other in Mexico who is more likely than Calles to rule the country with a steady hand.

The peon, in addition to land, needs modern implements for tilling the soil, and also instruction in up-to-date farming methods. The new government aims to aid him in these particulars.

President Calles believes that elementary education is one of Mexico's crying needs. This is one of his expressions on this subject: "For centuries Mexico's people have purposely been kept in ignorance by their rulers. If we are ever to achieve the goal of a happy, prosperous, self-respecting people, if we are ever to become a true democracy, it must be on the basis of equal opportunity for all. And the groundwork of this opportunity is education."

At this distance it appears that the new president means well to the country that has elected him to preside over its destinies, and there is widespread hope that the sort of thing that has so often characterized the country since the days of Spanish domination will not ensue.

MORE ABOUT OAKLAND'S GROWTH.

Oakland has another achievement to which it may point with pride, a new story of expansion which may be discussed with its cousins when the get-acquainted excursion starts through the interior to the San Joaquin County Fair at Stockton this month.

The first seven months of the year are not considered the "fat" months. Building is not usually up to average, due to weather conditions. Yet a report from the Chamber of Commerce shows that during these lean months Oakland managed to outdistance its phenomenal record of 1923 by 10 per cent.

Building permits totaling more than ten and a half millions have been issued. This means that 2403 new homes have been added to the residential district, as well as 194 new apartment houses, an increase in the estimated population of 13,500 on the basis of five families to an apartment house and one to a home.

Much of this increase, it is judged, is due to the growth of the automotive industry in Oakland. This industry now represents an investment of $13,000,000, and turns out a product annually valued at $80,000,000, one-fourth the value of all the other Eastbay manufactured products, and providing employment for more than 4000 persons.

The reason for the increase in housing facilities is based largely on the expansion of this industry and in the fact that each month sees the establishment of new factories and industries in Oakland. Statistics show that sixty factories have located here since the first of the year, and eight new industries were added during the last month.

All these figures are amazing and provide food for thought, but the success of the community is due more to the providence and thrift of its residents. A Federal report shows that 42 per cent of the residents of the Eastbay section own their own homes, and that tells the story.

THE DAWES REPARATION PLAN.

The signs are more favorable than they have been in five years for the termination of the "belligerent peace" that has prevailed in Europe since the world war and so disastrously upset the world.

It was a coincidence, and perhaps a happy augury, that the decision of the allied ministers to accept the Dawes plan was arrived at on the anniversary of German invasion of Belgium. Perhaps memories of that fact and of the four awful years which it presaged hastened the agreement.

The Germans have come in unreservedly. The great difficulty at first seemed to be their unsatisfactory attitude, and feeling among the allies that nothing could be left in doubt as to their part. They have now acquiesced in the proposition that they float a 400,000,000-pound loan, which is the most necessary requirement before the Dawes plan can be considered effected. The whole schedule of reparations defaults has been accepted by the Germans, and the difficult features of the negotiations have been negotiated.

Another event that betokens the establishment of an entente cordiale occurred Friday, when the heads of the German and French delegations exchanged courtesy calls. Considering the extreme belligerent attitude of these nations this is considered as at least a conclusion to agree on terms of disagreement. It is expected that the Germans will be held faithfully to the new reparations agreement, with the result that the French will be out of the Ruhr within a year at the farthest.

And it is entirely proper to remind that this nation is deserving of the major credit for what there is every warrant for saying will be a solution of a mighty vexing problem. It was due to the initiative of President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes that the commission was created, and it was due to their keen judgment of men that Charles G. Dawes was selected as the outstanding representative of the United States—possessing not only the world vision but the force of character necessary to carry through such great diplomacy.

THE CONNING TOWER

"Don Juanita, Day-Dreaming at Night."

Don Juanita, day-dreaming
at night
In a high silver tower
(Silver under the moon)
Set one more cigaret alight
And sang a little tune,
Having had her hour.

The fox wastes his breath
Pretending he's hound,
It was none of his doing,
Being in at the death;
I wasn't pursuing,
I was run to ground.

And where is the glory
Of lightly deceiving
Until you're gone grey
When she tells the story
And you were the prey
And nobody's grieving?

But Don Juanita, still daydreaming,
Watched a last ring
Where it lay curled
And considered her scheming,
And her latest fling,
And herself and the world

And saw herself climbing
Aloft all the years,
Laughing and lying,
Leaving perhaps some rhyming,
Perhaps some sighing,
A many in tears,

While she, heart of jade,
Jade heart and warm lips
Remembers only
Her part till she fade
Of leaving men lonely
As seas without ships,

As planets without moons,
As trees of spent blossom,
As violinless sobbing
Of sad bassoons,
Robbing, robbing
The heart from the bosom.

PENDRAGON

William Whittle of that Gay Gotham was complained against the other day by Miss Dorothy Walter, who said she had gone to his office in response to an advertisement for a stenographer. She said that he had tried to embrace her, and Whittle told Magistrate Ryttenberg that before hiring a girl he always tested her morals by putting his arms around her. "If she doesn't resent it," said Whittle, "I know she is used to it and not the kind of girl I want in my office." If she does resent it, it would seem to us that she would refuse to take the job. So how Whittle finally gets a stenographer to work for him would make a good piece for the American Magazine.

An incomplete amorist is Whittle. History does not support his statement that if she doesn't resent it she is used to it. Take Eve. Take Juliet. Take—but there! We mustn't violate confidences.

To Miss Harriette Underhill we are indebted for the words of "No, Sir." In one of the clearest contraltos that a cinema critic ever had, she sang them to us over the telephone yesterday afternoon. The first stanza is:

My father was a Spanish merchant.
And before he went to sea
He told me to be sure to answer
"No" to all you said to me.

Miss Underhill was first to set us right, but dozens of others recall, not all of them accurately, the song. But all of them didn't as was the custom on our block, sing "My father was a Spanish omelet." Some of them said "onion," and the boys on Ambrose Glutz's block used to sing:

My father was a Spanish mackerel.

Kansas City Star: "Everybody knows the case of Joseph Conrad, Polish boy who knew no English until he was 19, and later became one of the greatest masters of narrative English of his age. Conrad is dead, and his mastery of a foreign tongue will become a tradition. A generation or so later it will become a legend, and perhaps in a century solemn scientists of that day will be telling students that there was no truth in the legend of Joseph Conrad; that 'recent documents' have shown that Conrad was a native Englishman and grew up in the very atmosphere of Oxford. JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WEARY, SUMMER COTTAGER.

At Pointe Aux Barques, in Michigan.

I met a sad and gloomy man;
A gloomy man behind a tree.
In hiding there he seemed to be.
"Why do you hide?" said I to him.
"And why this look of anguish grim?"
Why don't you boldly walk about?"
He whispered low: "pray, do not shout!
I came out here to rest alone
And do not wish my presence known."

"Of what," asked I, "are you afraid?
Have you done wrong to man or maid
That thus you hide yourself away
And in such dark seclusion stay?"
"Sit down," said he, "I'll tell my tale,
Why I seek cover like a quail;
And why it is I do not dare
To occupy my rocking chair;
I came out here to rest, but oh,
The good wife keeps me on the go.

"If she beholds me sitting down
She promptly sends me into town
For oil or cheese or bread or milk,
Fly swatters or a yard of silk;
If I should take a book to read
A chunk of ice at once she'd need;
If I but pause to pet the pup
She promptly wants a shelf put up;
The moment that I come in view
She has a chore for me to do.

"I pick up bathing suits and chase
Stray bits of paper 'round the place;
I rake the yard and split the wood,
Run errands 'round the neighborhood;
And every time I think I'm through
She's thought up something else to do;
And that is why I sneak alone
And keep my whereabouts unknown;
Behind this ancient, friendly tree
I come to rest where she can't see."

Milwaukee Sentinel: "Senator Capper's tribute to Coolidge and Dawes is more than an individual expression of opinion. PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By DR. W. A. BRADY.

PERILS OF THE BATH.

They say the doctors opposed the introduction of the bath tub in this country, and one can well believe it, because as a general rule whatever the doctors oppose, no matter how unjustly or unreasonably they seem to do so, is objectionable on good grounds. But people have a way of going ahead and doing as they please or as the commercial propaganda suggests, without much regard for what the doctors may think about it, and so a good many thousands of our poor people find themselves stuck with a bath tub and a growing reluctance to use it. That is to bathe in.

Not that my notions about the common bath tub would discourage any one from getting into one of the nasty things. But it appears that health experts or authorities are finding serious fault with the boarding house, hotel, dormitory and family tub. A health expert or authority is a person who expresses opinions, observations or theories on any question of hygiene or sanitation and lives far enough away so you don't know him too well. In fact some such essential is an important factor on any subject.

Kathe[illegible] Hirst and Jean Broadhurst of teachers' college, New York, found the common colon bacillus, a germ normally present in the human intestine and sometimes responsible for disease, in 39 out of 113 bath tubs which were ordinarily clean.

When the common colon bacillus is found in water we usually condemn the water as unsafe to use, for the presence of that bacillus is a good index of pollution of the water.

It made no difference whether the tubs examined were "clean" or "dirty" in the ordinary sense.

If such germs, usually harmless though they be, are found so frequently in bath tubs, it would be reasonable to suppose that more virulent disease producing germs may be transferred via the common tub. But so far as I know there is no actual proof or convincing scientific evidence that anybody ever does catch any disease through the use of a common bath tub or a common drinking cup.

Hirst and Broadhurst found that the use of ammonia failed to kill the colon bacilli in or on the tub. Likewise the use of kerosene failed to kill the germs. But ordinary chlorinated lime (commonly sold by groceries in tin boxes as "chloride of lime") did kill the germs when applied in freshly made, saturated solution—all the chlorinated lime a quart of water will dissolve. Two highly advertised commercial "disinfectants" proved useless when applied in the dilutions advertised, though fairly obnoxious to the germs when applied in solutions twice as strong as the optimistic advertisements suggest. "There is probably no addition to the cleaning and disinfecting substances used in the home so well worth the money and the slight amount of labor required," assert these experts, referring to the small tins of "chloride of lime" for use as disinfectant.

To all of which I agree, only my notion is that one should leave bath tubs for helpless invalids and use only a shower for body washing.

WATER DEAL WITH S. F. IS DEADLOCKED

Eastbay Directors to Prepare Reply to Rolph Letter in Which Price Offered Was Mentioned as 'Ridiculous'

A crisis in the Eastbay-San Francisco water negotiations is expected tonight when the directors of the Eastbay municipal utility district meet to frame a reply to the letter of Mayor Rolph in which the latter termed the Eastbay offer of $1.50 per acre foot of Hetch Hetchy water "ridiculous."

The crux of the situation is that Rolph's reply signifies that San Francisco will not set a price on the Hetch Hetchy water, and the district directors will not consider other negotiations until the price has been fixed.

Directors of the water district agree with Rolph that the tentative price of $1.50 per acre foot was inadequate, but they declare that it was suggested to induce San Francisco to talk terms.

Instead of terms, Mayor Rolph has given them the same reply he has given to all their requests for a price on the Hetch Hetchy water.

DEADLOCK INDICATED.

"I am still waiting for a statement from your board that you are satisfied that San Francisco's title to the Hetch Hetchy water is sufficient to your needs," Rolph stated. "After receiving the latter advice I will be very glad to take the question of price up with the board of supervisors."

From the exchange of courtesies between the district and Mayor Rolph it is clear that a deadlock has been reached. The district does not want to investigate Hetch Hetchy until it is known how much the water will cost and San Francisco will not name a price until the district has completed its other investigations.

Rolph's letter, referring to the tentative offer as an "attempted pleasantry" and a "gross misapprehension," came in reply to the directors' affirmation that a price would have to be set on the Hetch Hetchy water immediately if that source was to be considered among the other under discussion.

Preconceived notions regarding a water source, formed in advance of the engineer's report will do more harm than good, it was stated by James H. Boyer, director of the district, speaking last night before the Bayview Improvement club.

ENGINEERING PROBLEM.

Boyer said a selection of a water source is a cold-blooded engineering problem into which no prejudice or emotion should be allowed to enter. He held that the matter should be left in the hands of engineers to decide as to what is the cheapest, quickest and most available source of supply.

"Our chief engineer, Mr. Davis, has advised the board of directors that he will in all probability be ready to recommend one source definitely by the middle of next month," said Boyer. "His report will be based on investigations made by himself and a large staff operating in the office and in the field. Mr. Davis' men are now, and have been for some time, operating in the Mokelumne, American, Eel, Sacramento rivers and other big basins, in an effort to get facts and figures on which he can base a conclusion.

PREJUDICE DECRIED.

"In certain sections of the community there seems to have been an effort to prejudice the public mind in advance of the filing of this report. The problem is one that must be met by intelligence and not by emotion. We want good water and we want it as quickly as possible and at a reasonable rate. The engineers' report is expected to give us this information and to present comparative figures proving definitely why the selected source is superior to the other nine or ten possibilities. The directors of the utility district have gone on record as being entirely impartial as regards a source. We have selected one of the most capable engineers in America and we are willing to await his decision.

"The directors are anxious to make as much haste as possible in the solution of this water problem. The situation is acute and if we should have another dry year following the drought of last year, it might work a disaster upon the community. Therefore, it is our desire to call a bond election as soon as possible after the filing of the engineers' report. It is probable that such an election will be called this fall. The amount of bonds which will be asked for cannot be suggested at this time and will not be known until a rough estimate has been made of the cost of the proposed project.

PROJECT HANGS FIRE.

[illegible] participation in the Hetch Hetchy project still hangs fire. For many months we have been in communication with Mayor Rolph and his committee in San Francisco endeavoring to learn upon what terms and conditions the Eastbay might purchase Tuolumne water. San Francisco has evidently decided to abandon for the present the construction of the aqueduct across the San Joaquin valley and the very long and expensive tunnels through the foothills. Their tentative plan now is to spend $8,000,000 to build the tunnel that will bring Hetch Hetchy water from Moccasin creek to Oakdale portal. The inference is that they believe they will then be in a position to sell this water to the Eastbay cities regardless of whether they ever get it into San Francisco.

"However, there seems to be a great stumbling block in the way of our purchasing any of this water. San Francisco has consistently refused to satisfy us as to their title in the Tuolumne water shed and to tell us what price we would have to pay for the water at Oakdale portal. Our last letter to Mayor Rolph put the matter of price squarely up to him and urged immediate action. We are still awaiting a reply. The directors have taken the position that they must know how much this water is going to cost before they buy it, and they must be reasonably sure that their rights are not going to be attacked by other interests after they have spent millions of dollars in bringing the water from Oakdale to the Eastbay reservoirs."

Boyer will speak next Friday before the Optimist club at Hotel Oakland to discuss the water problem in general and Hetch Hetchy in particular.

1 KILLED, 10 INJURED IN AUTOWRECKS

Owner Dies as Machine Turns Over; Bakersfield Woman Going Home From Oakland Conveniton Dies

BY UNITED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

Motor car accidents caused 43 deaths. Fourteen persons were drowned and one man was killed when a wooden grandstand caved in.

MERCED, Aug. 11.—Returning home from the United Artisans' convention at Oakland, one woman was killed and three persons slightly injured in an automobile accident four miles north of here on the state highway yesterday. The dead woman is Mrs. Edna Estelle Garner, 42 of Bakersfield. The other occupants of the car were E. M. Austin, owner and driver, Miss Ella Engle and Miss Cora Perkins, all of Bakersfield.

According to Austin the car struck the sand on the highway, the car's wheels cramped and it turned over pinning all the occupants beneath it.

One dead and ten injured in the toll of automobile accidents in San Francisco Bay region over the week end.

George Henry Haskell, 5514 Edgerly street, died this morning in the Cottage Hospital at San Pablo, from injuries sustained when his automobile skidded and overturned on the Richmond highway, a few miles from San Pablo, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Mabel Lefebure of Pinole suffered internal injuries and many cuts and bruises when the automobile in which she was riding, driven by her husband, collided with a machine driven by Robert Bartlett, 1320 Center street, at Tenth and Jefferson streets. Mrs. Lefebure was taken to the emergency hospital by the police. The accident was unavoidable, according to the police report.

Miss Louise Glennon, 19, 3520 San Jose avenue, Alameda, was badly cut about the face and body when an automobile driven by William Edward, 3110 San Jose avenue, Alameda, in which she was riding, collided with a telephone pole at Thirty-fifth avenue and Foothill boulevard. Edward told the police he dozed off while driving and ran off the road. He was not injured.

Eugene Kozlawski, 2714 Viola street, suffered a fractured left leg and cuts and bruises when the motorcycle which he was riding collided with an automobile driven by John Nini, 812 Fallon street, at East Twelfth street and Lakeshore boulevard.

HURT SAVING BABY.

Mrs. Thomas King, 2307 Twenty-fifth avenue, was cut with flying glass when she threw herself in front of her year old baby to save him when the automobile in which they were riding ran into a ditch on the highway near the county hospital. Thomas King, who was driving, was unhurt. He told authorities that a passing automobile crowded him off the highway.

In San Francisco, four persons were cut and bruised when the automobile in which they were riding overturned following a collision with another machine at Third and Howard streets

FATAL ACCIDENT ADMITTED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Following the death today at St. Mary's Hospital of Edward O'Kane, 40 years old, the police arrested Victor Zambodo, 1451 Church st., who admitted striking the aged man with sis machine last Thursday. Zambodo said he stopped, picked up O'Kane and took him to his home at 995 Folsom street, where the victim expressed the belief that he was unhurt. Zambodo then left his card and departed. Later O'Kane developed a fractured skull.

TWO WOMEN INJURED AS CAR TAKES PLUNGE.

SAN JOSE, Aug. 11. — Two women were injured and several persons shaken when the automobile driven by Henry Christensen, 281 Rolph street, San Francisco, plunged 50 feet off a grade on the Alum Rock road near this city and turned over.

The injured are: Mrs. Margaret Christensen, wife of the driver of the car, broken collar bone, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Annie Jensen, 476 Third street, San Jose, aunt of Mrs. Christensen, broken collar bone, severe scalp wound.

Allen Sanderson, 15, of 994 Delmas avenue, was rendered unconscious and sustained severe cuts and bruises when he was knocked from his bicycle by the automobile driven by Grace Turner, 757 Morris street.

While C. J. Roger was traveling in his automobile at 40 miles an hour, according to witnesses, he hit the engine of the Padre, Southern Pacific train, as it was pulling out of the Market street station at First street. The driving rod of the locomotive picked up the car and pounded it to junk. Rogers and several companions were thrown out, but escaped unhurt.

BERKELEY, Aug. 11. — In an effort to save her baby from falling from the automobile which she was driving, Mrs S. J. Leland, 1311 Carlotta street, drove into a parked machine at Hopkins and Carlotta streets, at 6 o'clock last night.

As Mrs. Leland was making a turn the door of her car flew open. Fearing that her baby, who was sitting in the front seat with her, would be thrown from the machine, she let go of the steering wheel. Her car crashed into a parked automobile belonging to William Lockie, 1638 Hopkins street.

Both cars were damaged but neither Mrs. Leland or the baby was hurt.

Man Seeks Lost Wooden Leg Held in Lieu of Rent

If the woman who is keeping Walter A. Nolan's wooden leg in satisfaction of an unpaid rent will communicate with him at 1661 Market street, San Francisco, she may liquidate her holdings.

Nolan writes to The TRIBUNE that he needs the artificial leg desperately, and while he has long been able to redeem his pledge he has not been able to find the holder.

While a guest at an Oakland hotel, Nolan became $14 in arrears in his room rent, he said, and the landlady seized his leg to secure the payment.

The day before Christmas Nolan offered her $10, money sorely needed for other purposes, his letter states, but the landlady declined anything short of full payment and held firmly to her security.

Later she sold the hotel and all attempts to find her have been fruitless.

"I cannot locate her, and am without the use of my leg," Nolan writes. "The cost of one is $150, and mine is of absolutely no value to her.

"Would you please try to locate her through the columns of your paper? By doing so you will confer a great favor on me and earn my eternal gratitude."

POLICE HUNT "PHANTOM BURGLAR"

Mysterious Criminal Evades Officers Third Time When Girl Awakened by Intrusion in Home Gives Alarm

ALAMEDA, Aug. 11.—Police today renewed their watch for Alameda's phantom burglar with vigilance following his third escape after discovery while ransacking occupied houses. Acting Chief of Police George Daly instructed patrolmen to keep close watch while making their night rounds and he and Detective Sergeant B. H. Conant are reviewing all the evidence they have at hand in the hope of apprehending the thief, who, they declare, is one of the wiliest and boldest criminals the police here have ever had to deal with.

The mysterious burglar, who has been nicknamed "the phantom" by the local police because of his agility, quick wit and apparent ability to see in the dark, escaped capture for the third time Sunday morning when Miss Hattie McDonnell, 1041 Lincoln avenue, awoke just as he was making his entrance to her home. Miss McDonnell heard her door opening and ran from her room to a side porch just in time to see a dark figure emerge from a side door of her home. On two previous occasions the "phantom" escaped identification by two women, when he awakened them in their sleeping rooms, by flashing an electric torch in their eyes, dazzling them until he left the rooms.

Theft of a special-built camera of a German manufacture valued at $200 and an automobile tire valued at $40 was reported to the police this morning by J. C. Hall, 1315 Dayton avenue. Prowlers stole the articles from the Hall basement.

Neil Crowley, living at the El Centro apartments, 1300 Park street, reported the theft of a suit of clothes valued at $25 and a revolver valued at $15 from his rooms this morning.

Tokyo Quake Victim Pens Note to Oakland

A LETTER from little Hoso Yama of Tokyo is now one of the prizes of the low sixth grade of Elmhurst school, as the result of the policy of that school of starting correspondence with children in all parts of the world. Hoso says:

"I thank you Americans for being so kind to us. My house was burned down in the great fire, but I do not care, for no one in our family was hurt. There are many who have lost father, mother, sister, brother, everything. When I think about them I do not need anything."

The Elmhurst letter-campaign, inaugurated as part of the geography study, has already netted letters from London, Paris, Italy, India, Canada, and many American cities.

BIDS ASKED FOR PAVING E. 14TH ST.

First steps toward paving the south side of East Fourteenth street from Laurel avenue to Hayward by the county were taken today when the supervisors ordered advertising for bids for the work. It is estimated it will cost in the neighborhood of $95,000.

Property owners have deeded the right-of-way to the county.

The East Fourteenth street paving is in line with a policy instituted by Supervisors Redmond C. Staats and John F. Mullins toward the repaving in conjunction with the city. A recent ruling by the appellate court allows the board to turn over $200,000 to the city as its portion of the improvement.

The board also passed a resolution taking over as a county highway portions of Vance street and East Euclid avenue, from Spruce street south to the East Bay Water company property, in Berkeley. The county intends ultimately making it part of the continuation of the Skyline boulevard to the Contra Costa county line.

The increase of population on Bay Farm Island is indicated by an application of the Pacific Gas and Electric company for a permit to lay a four-inch high-pressure gas main across the estuary to that island. A copy of the request for this permit to the war department was received by the supervisors today from Colonel Herbert Deakyne

Why You Need Two Watches

At the desk, on the train, or for outdoor play, the wrist watch is indispensable.

Yet with evening dress a man's strap watch becomes out of place and a woman's sport model an ornament of doubtful taste.

Thus convenience and dress demand that you possess two watches.

If you would choose correctly, examine our extensive assortment of reliable American and Swiss watches.

Buying Furs in Summer is like putting in your Winter supply of coal—although around the bay region, in our changeable, foggy climate, Furs are quite necessary in the Summer.

In sweltering New York there is always a lull in the fur business. Manufacturers are able to procure labor in Summer cheaper; workers, rather than take a "lay-off," accept a lower wage. Raw skins advance in colder weather, and when the big demand is on, labor is scarce and wages go higher. We purchased our furs early. You can save on an average of 25% by buying from us right now. "The Covered Wagon" Opens At American Engagement of Screen Epic Limited. Management Announced.

"The Covered Wagon" opened Sunday at the American Theater for a limited engagement, marking the picture's first popular price appearance in Oakland.

Romance, a strong love theme, tremendous dramatic incidents of extraordinary screen type, characterizations which convince one that the actors and actresses are actually living their parts, and throughout a story that thrills in suspense and is told with remarkable attention to sequence, are the factors that from a technical standpoint explain the success of "The Covered Wagon," which, after two years, still attracts capacity houses.

The story surrounds one of the most fascinating periods in American history—that era in 1849 when thousands of stout-hearted men and women defied the perils of a 2000-mile trip over uncharted country to win their fortunes in the gold-bearing West.

Ernest Torrence as Jackson, the unshaven, picturesque scout; Tully Marshall as Bridger, his rum-consuming buddy; Lois Wilson, who is an unusually beautiful as Molly Wingate; Alan Hale as the unscrupulous "heavy;" J. Warren Kerrigan as a very acceptable hero, and little John Fox as Jed Wingate, who chews tobacco and plays a banjo, have the most conspicuous roles in the cast of 3000 persons.

Former Arkansans Plan Annual Frolic

All former residents of the state of Arkansas who are now living in Oakland, San Francisco or other neighboring cities in the San Francisco bay district are being "rounded up" by Colonel H. P. Rucker of the Arkansas State Society for the annual picnic and reunion of the organization which is to be held in Mosswood park in Oakland on Sunday, August 31. Colonel Rucker is the founder and past president of the society, which is now headed by Guy Smith of San Francisco. Rucker urges all Arkansans living in this section of California to communicate with him at his headquarters in the Syndicate building, Oakland.

If projected productions count for anything this is going to be another year that will serve to make the art of spelling less a pleasure and more a nuisance.

Last year it was the Russians we had to struggle with due to the assiduity of Morris Gest, who managed to gather all the polysyllabic names in the Russian show world. Other times it has been the Yiddish players, Italians and so on. Now, one observes, we are to suffer from a Hungarian complex. This is to be a great season for Hungarian art and a fat one for Hungarian playwrights.

Already the operas of nine or ten Hungarians are scheduled for presentation and in the majority of the names there is an absence of the pleasing vowels.

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Oda Waldrop, "Cleverest Soubrette in America," joins Ye Liberty players in "Shenandoah."

Ferenc Molnar will be represented in "The Guardsmen" and "The Phantom Rival;" Melchoir Lengyel in "Antonia;" Lajos Biro in "The Highwayman" and "The Yellow Lily," and Ernest Vajda in "Harem," "Grounds for Divorce" and "High C."

The first three are known already and Vajda burst into popularity last season with "Fata Morgana." Then youth in Hungary is represented by Ladislaus Fodor in "Successful Despite Himself;" Attila Orbok in "The Comet" and "Four Gentlemen in Dress Suits," and Nicholas Vitez in "Where Is the Drama?"

Old age has his fling in the person of Michal Timar, a veteran Hungarian writer, whose "Boldizsar Pupos" will be presented, and the musical honors will be aimed at by Eugene Farago and M. Nador in "Offenbach."

Singularly enough, most of the importations are being made by Gilbert Miller, son of Henry Miller, who has been such a staunch defender of the American theatrical faith. Young Miller started this Hungarian "yen" and the others are stubbing their toes trying to catch up with him.

Archer Peeved at Former Brother Critics

In England George Arliss is appearing in William Archer's "The Green Goddess," and some of the British dramatic critics were inclined to sniff at the idea of ensconcing melodrama in the St. James. Having been a dramatic critic and used to manipulating a trenchant pen, Archer forthwith replied:

"Some of the critics are shocked to see such an humble melodrama 'enthroned' on the classic boards of St. James and actually playing to (apparently) educated audiences," writes Archer in reply. "He likes to think that these degenerate intellectuals,' although they are enjoying themselves thoroughly, are conscious all the time of a slightly guilty feeling and turn up their noses at their baser selves.'

FORTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Fred Warde is playing "Ingomar" and "Virginius" at Emerson's.

"It is, of course, possible that nice anthropometric tests would disclose an appreciable increment in the nasal elevation of literate London, but I do not think it is perceptible to the naked eye. Nor is it quite apparent why the St. James should lose caste through the admission of melodrama within its hallowed precincts.

"The truth seems to be that modern intellectualism has schooled itself to despise what may be called strong, straightforward dramatic effect, the sort of effect the great dramatists of the past have always and quite shamelessly aimed at. The high brow of today stigmatizes as melodrama 'a good deal of Shakespeare and everything of Pinero except his farces'."

EXITS AND ENTRANCES

A new Owen Davis play is scheduled for early presentation by Lewis and Gordon. It is called "The Haunted House" and Wallace Eddinger will star.

This is the same play that was tried in San Francisco and Los Angeles and was called once "Find the Woman" and again "The Long Arm."

Frank Gillmore, leader of the Actors' Equity, and David Belasco, the producer, are recovering from nervous breakdowns.

Firmin Gemier, the French star, leader of a subsidized government theater in Paris, has been invited by the State Department to visit this country with his players. This returns the compliment paid by France to James K. Hackett. The Shuberts will handle the Gemier tour.

* * *

Colleen Moore, Donna of Peralta and queen of Oakland's Better Movie Week, is to play the principal role in the picturization of Edna Ferber's "So Big" and Charles Brabin will attend to the directing.

Florence Mills will star in a new negro-revue, "Dixie to Broadway," to be presented under the direction of A. H. Woods and Lew Leslie.

Charles Mundin, an English actor, is now a star and he owes his elevation to the American public. He came to New York to play in the Charlot Revue and made a distinct personal hit. Now his name is in lights.

Dewey D. Bloom, apparently the new press agent for the Selwyns, notes that Maurice and Hughes, the American dancers who have scored so heavily in London, will return in Selwyn's international revue. Odd, isn't it?

Whoever picks titles for the Dramatists' Theater Inc. plays must be an ex-turf mill trainer, who is now running a truck garden. The line-up includes "The Goose Hangs High," "The Lion's Share," "The Leopard Lady," "Horse Sense," "The Hare and the Tortoise," "Silver Apples" and, just for variety, "Cheer Up." "The Goose" tours this year.

Actors continually wise-crack about the hicks who buy gold bricks, but it remained for Tom Hilton, an actor, to buy axle grease for asthma cure.

"On the Stairs" Thrills at Fulton

One man was scared to death and hundreds of others were frightened out of a year's growth at the Fulton theater last evening.

It all happened during the last half minute of "On the Stairs," which was presented for the first time here last evening. John Ivan, as the Hindu swami, died of fright and the audience got some gray hairs.

"On the Stairs" is a mystery play that in moments excels some of the most hair-raising we have had in these parts. It starts with a murder on the stairs of a home. This is the prologue. Twenty years after the mystery is unraveled but not until one other is killed, an abduction has taken place, jewels have been stolen and devious other exciting things have happened.

As is the case in these mystery thrillers to tell the story is to spoil the play for the next fellow so the reviewer must content himself with a report on the general situation as affects plot construction and acting. The play is a queer intermixture of dullness, emotional intensity and comedy, and was nicely enacted.

To John Ivan went the chief acting honors in the role of the sinister swami. In Oakland Ivan has been known chiefly for his abilities as a funster but his fame in the east is as a villain of the deepest dye. And so the opportunity was afforded the Fulton ... excellent as the suave ruthless East Indian who dominates the plot of "On the Stairs."

Norman Field as the skeptical young man who is very much in love with a girl who has fallen a victim to the magnetism of a visiting Hindu fakir. In his effort to expose the fake he gets himself entangled in a strange set of circumstances but eventually is successful and wins the girl who was charmingly portrayed by Ruth Renick.

The Fulton Players accorded the principals capable support.—W. S.

Oaklander Drowns At Birthday Picnic

John W. Norton, 543 Thirtieth street, was drowned yesterday in the San Joaquin river. Norton and his wife, with some friends, had gone on a pleasure trip to celebrate his 21st birthday. He went in for a swim and after a short while his wife heard him call for help. Norton sank almost immediately and before he could be reached had drowned. Besides his wife Norton is survived by an infant child.

Fox Presents Beau Brummel As Headliner

John Barrymore Starred With Unusual Cast of Film Notables.

"Beau Brummel," with John Barrymore in the title role, is showing at the Fox-Oakland this week.

The story of the famous dandy, to whom the cut of a coat or the color of a cravat meant more than the favor of beautiful women, and his fall from the position of a pet of royalty to destitution, constitutes one of the most fascinating tales of history. In the hands of Barrymore the character of Beau Brummel stands out as one of the finest portrayals of screen work.

The supporting cast includes Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis and Carmel Myers. The filming of "Beau Brummel" was attended by the creation of some of the most elaborate and beautiful settings and costumes of the picturesque period that could be devised.

2 GIRLS HELD IN KIDNAPER PROBE

Albert Childers, Charles Wood, Ruby Snores and Pearl Fratte are under arrest in San Francisco on suspicion of being the quartet which kidnaped and robbed Louis A. Dias, 1210 Clark street, Oakland, on the night of July 12. Dias was taken to a lonely spot in Contra Costa county, beaten and robbed of $24 in cash, a gold watch and a check for $40.

The two women were arrested on July 29, when they attempted to pawn the watch in Vallejo. They protested they knew nothing about the robbery, saying the watch had been given them, but the police kept them under surveillance for ten days and finally arrested them in company with the two men today. The women are held on vagrancy charges and the men were turned over to Deputy Sheriff A. F. Joslyn of Martinez for trial in Contra Costa county.

Two Women Saved After Taking Poison

Two Oakland women are today recovering from suicide attempts by poisoning, brought about by despondency, according to police reports.

Mrs. Anna Dyas, living at the Savoy Hotel was found in her room in a semi-conscious condition by G. May who heard her moaning.

Discovered by neighbors late last night after having taken poison in an attempt to end her life, Mrs. Kati Fasno, 678 Twelfth street, was treated at the emergency hospital. Both women will recover.

"Don't Doubt Your Husband" On State Bill

Viola Dana Starred in Screen Feature; Norok Sisters Head Vaudeville.

Viola Dana never had a better starring vehicle than "Don't Doubt Your Husband," which opened a three-day engagement at the State Theater yesterday as the feature screen attraction.

Everyone who is married or who expects to get married should see this merry satire on the suspicious wife who is always leaping at conclusions and keeping the matrimonial nest in a turmoil. It is thrilling, spiced with the paprika of smartness and sizzling with tense situations.

The Morok Sisters and Clinton and Capell carry off the headline honors of the vaudeville bill that is also presented, offering an aerial novelty. Clinton and Capell have a laughable offering entitled "Bits of This and That." Others on this program are Ates and Darling in "Beautiful and Dumb;" Claude DeCar, "All By Himself," and Nelson and Day in "A Musical Cocktail."

Starting Wednesday, the feature screen attraction will be the dramatic sensation, "The Woman on the Jury" with a cast which includes Henry B. Walthall, Bessie Love, Hobart Bosworth, Mary Carr, Lew Cody, Frank Mayo, Sylvia Breamer, Myrtle Stedman, Roy Stewart and Ford Sterling.

S. F. Mayor Posts Bond So Aliens Can Land in U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Five Passengers who arrived here on the Maunganui are free of government red tape today through the generosity of Mayor James Rolph, who posted $2500 for them with the immigration authorities. The Maunganui reached this port yesterday from New Zealand and Australia. The passengers said they had been permitted to board the ship without being informed of the provisions of the new immigration law, which requires that a $500 bond be put up by foreign visitors as a guarantee that they will remain in this country only six months.

Sixteen other passengers arriving on the Maunganui, who were unable to post the required bond, or who lacked the vise of an American consul on their passports, were sent to the island.

$1300 in Gems, Money Stolen

Mrs. Ethel A. Williams, 3111 Piedmont avenue, Berkeley, today reported to the police that her vanity case was stolen from her automobile parked in the rear of 3611 Contra Costa road. The box containing a white gold crescent shaped pin set with fourteen diamonds. The pin is valued at $1300. There was also $50 in the case, a bank book and a bunch of keys.

News of the Theaters

Juggler Headlines Orpheum Program

By WOOD SOANES.

A juggler headlines the bill, an accordeon chatterer steals the show, "a boy from Dixie" adds a touch of obscenity that comes in poor taste, and a talented pony displays human qualities in the closing spot.

This sums up the high lights of the Orpheum and indicates the variety of the acts assembled for the week. It is a typical vaudeville bill designed to entertain and, perhaps, instruct.

Heretofore jugglers have been relegated either to the opening or closing positions on vaudeville bills, but Enrico Rastelli is not that kind of juggler. It was said of Napoleon or someone that he could do two or three things at once. Rastelli can do six and do them with ease. He is quite the most proficient juggler ever to grace the local boards.

Rastelli not only is a master of his art but he is a showman and his routine is one that will bring joy to the hearts of those who have been annoyed by the "stalling" of less talented artists striving to make an impression with their feats. This artist does the most difficult sort of stuff with an ease that belies his dexterity. He well deserves his lavish billing.

But while the work of Rastelli is ... "a boy from a good family" that the customers laugh. Baker is no stranger. He has been here before with his accordeon and he can be depended upon to provide a delightful fifteen minutes without stooping to the shady joke or the blue song. His comedy is clean and bright and his material is up to the minute.

In the case of Gene Morgan, "The Boy from Dixie," the kindest thing is to suggest a return to his motherland. He has been grossly deceived by some false friend who told him that to be vulgar was to be funny. At that, Morgan can dance but the odor from the first half of the act is still assailing the olfactory organs when he does execute some first-rate dance movements.

The program on the whole is one destined to please the youngsters, especially the act of Mascot, a sleek little horse who can make change, spell and do all the things that horses are not supposed to do even to getting in bed and pulling the covers up over his ears. Other interesting numbers are provided by the Parisian Trio, and Neville Fleeson and Ann Greenway. This week's picture is "What Shall I Do?"

Housewives, furniture economics in "Household Goods For Sale" (classified pages).

"Single Wives" Is Feature On T.&D. Program

Fanchon and Marco Arrange New Music and Variety Stage Acts.

Surrounded by an all-star cast, Milton Sills and Corinne Griffith give excellent accounts of unusual acting roles in "Single Wives," the second of the "Greater Movie Season" pictures now playing at the T. & D. Theater. Lou Tellegen, Henry B. Walthall, Kathlyn Williams and Phyllis Haver comprise the balance of the cast.

The story's difference from the usual run of society and matrimonial problem plays is seen when a mother-in-law reunites a young married couple through her keener insight into their lives. On the first anniversary of their wedding after the glamour of marriage has waned into commonplace married life, the mother-in-law arranges for a second honeymoon.

"On the Boardwalk," offered by Fanchon & Marco, is an act which carries with it the color, gaiety and mode of the celebrated "walk" at Atlantic City. The melodious jazz marimba band furnishes the music, while Roy Giusti and Helen Gilmour do a dance and song number. "Frisco" Nick, a comical darkey, does some clever stepping about the stage and a score of bathing beauties complete the latest Fanchon & Marco "Idea." Helen Wills, the Eastbay's tennis champion, is seen in the News Weekly.

Phone Operator's Work Saves Girl Who Took Poison

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Through the presence of mind of a telephone operator, an alleged attempt at suicide on the part of Miss Inez Hartman, 23, was frustrated last night. The telephone girl is Miss Serena Haimovitch, employed at the Central Police Station.

When she answered one of the police calls last night she heard a moan at the other end of the wire, followed by the sound of some one falling to the floor. She traced the call to 695 Dolores street. The Central Emergency Ambulance was sent out to that adress and Miss Hartman was found on the floor with an empty poison bottle beside her.

At the hospital today, hopes were held out for her recovery. Miss Hartman came here from the southern part of the State. She is thought to have been brood over failure to obtain work.

Every Sufferer of Stomach Trouble Should Read What He Says About This Famous New Medicine

Every sufferer of stomach trouble, indigestion and other ailments derived from stomach trouble, who reads this statement from Mr. Charles Moore, 2415 Eakin St., Dallas, Tex., telling how Karnak has fixed him up so that he can eat hearty for the first time in two years, will be exceedingly grateful to Mr. Moore, for this famous new medicine of Andre's should relieve them of their troubles the same as it has done for Mr. Moore.

"Yes, sir, I am rid of it all," said Mr. Moore, "and words can't express my gratitude to Karnak. I was simply afraid to eat, for I suffered such misery after meals with indigestion and bloating that I could not draw a deep breath. I had to always be taking strong purgatives for constipation, and was so weak I could hardly get around.

"But now I am eating vegetables and anything else I want and feel fine in every way, so you see why I think so much of Karnak and am glad to tell others about it."

SMALL RUSSIAN TRADE WITH U. S. EXPERT FORECAST

Latest Budget Reports Show Nation Making Very Slow Economic Progress.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—"Since 1917," says L. M. Miller, statistician of the National Bank of Commerce, "the spectacular character of Russian events has won for Russian affairs a place of great prominence in current discussions of conditions in Europe."

"More recently, since a number of European nations have recognized the Soviet union, emphasis has shifted away from Russian politics to business possibilities. The importance of Russian trade as a factor in the return of satisfactory economic conditions has been much stressed and in those countries which were wont to trade with Russia before the war high hopes have been built upon the reestablishment of commercial relations with that country.

INFORMATION WANTED.

"Expectations apparently held in some quarters of development of a large trade with Russia apear to be based not on lack of knowledge of the situation there today but on misconceptions as to the domestic conditions prevailing in Russia prior to the outbreak of the world war, and the international position of the country at that time. The measure of the international commercial importance of a country obviously is its foreign trade. In the three years immediately preceding 1914 the total average value of the foreign commerce of Russia, exclusive of Finland, was about $1,400,000,000. This was less than 4 per cent. of the total international trade of the seventy countries for which data are available in the statistical abstract of the United States.

"Russian foreign commerce was less han nine-tenths that of Belgium, not much larger than that of British India and one-third the value of that of the United States.

BUDGET SUMMARY.

"The true condition of Russia is perhaps unconsciously summarized in an analysis of the budget of 1923-24, in the Russian Review. It is there estimated that in 1922-23 the Russian national income or 50 gold rubles per head compared with 101 gold rubles prior to 1914. If the peasants and workmen of Russia have gained anything at all as a result of the revolution their gains must be purely psychologic. Although the land is nationalized, the peasants are in actual possession of it and theoretically the workmen enjoy a large measure of control of Russia's ineffective industries. Both peasants and workmen may find an added measure of content in general poverty and consequent absence of contrasts.

"Some increase in Russian trade nevertheless will occur and neighboring countries will profit thereby to a limited extent. Russia will buy in the United States raw materials which she must purchase here, such as cotton, and American manufactures especially suitable for Russian use, of which agricultural machinery is typical. American exports of these classes are entering Russia now. Insofar as the United States needs Russian products, our merchants are finding them in the world's markets, as they did prior to 1914. Any change which might take place in Russian-American relations would not greatly affect the volume of trade between the two countries. It has never been large and there is no basis for any expectation that it will be large in the future."

STEEL

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11.—Slightly heavier steel operations are expected in the Mahoning valley where 69 of 119 independent steel mills are in operation. The demand for ore has quickened moderately with a recent order for 200,000 tons but three lake freighters have been added to the idle fleet, making 93 out of service.

P. G. and E. to Issue More Stock; Railways Climb Into 'New Highs'; Copper, Foreign Exchange Higher; Montgomery Ward in Public Favor

By H. S. SCOTT.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company believes that the public is very favorably inclined to its common stock. It is only about two weeks since the company concluded the sale of a batch of $5,000,000 worth of this stock and today it asked the railway commission for permission to issue another batch of like am unt.

The P. G. & E. common stock has been on an 8 per cent basis for over a year now. It has been steadily climbing in the San Francisco markets for some weeks and the recent offering of the bunch of new stuff to the value of $5,000,000 failed to cause it to even hesitate on its upward career. The new issue, which is now planned, is expected to find ready sale, in fact it is known that the oversubscriptions to the last issue will absorb almost the most of it at the start. P. G. and E. common sold today in San Francisco and New York above 95.

High priced railroad and oil stocks had their day in the stock markets today. Speculative activity centered around these stocks was either professional in its origin or represented inside buying for powerful capitalists, many of whom have already turned from the insufficient supplies of the bond market to the stock market, where high grade dividend stocks yield higher returns.

Notwithstanding the swift pace these stocks have been traveling in recent weeks, they were not to be deterred from raching highr levels today in New York. Central Railroad of New Jersey, up 14 points to a new high at 251, was the leader of the group, but Canadian Pacific, 145; Union Pacific above 145; Southern Pacific at 97½; Lackawanna at 142; Delaware & Hudson at 134¾; New York Central in new high ground at 110; Pullman at 134; Atchison at 106½; Louisville & Nashville at 103; American Radiator at 113½; General Electric at 275 and Illinois Central at 112, were no less impressive in their movements.

Buoyant foreign exchange markets preceded the opening of the stock market, sterling rushing up nearly three cents since Saturday to 4.56¾ and French francs gained about 21 points to 5.71 cents on reports of further progress in the reparations settlement in London. Belgian francs advanced to 5.2[illegible] and Dutch guilders to 39.10 cents. Though published on Saturday, the full effect of the steel corporation's monthly report on unfilled orders was not manifest until today, when a good volume of buying orders in that and other steel stocks awaited the start of trading in the new week. With the exception of a few of the oil stocks prices were higher at the opening.

Irregular developments in the oil stocks followed the announcement of price cuts in crude oil and the passing of dividends by oil companies.

Heretofore the passing of dividends was confined almost exclusively to the independent oil companies, but the omitting of stockholders' dividends by the Atlantic Refining Company and the Standard Oil of Kansas shows that even the strongly entrenched Standard Oil companies realize the necessity of conserving cash. Oil stocks were unsteady in the first period and considering the many adverse influences they have had to bear under in the last two months, their market action is creditable.

Copper metal made a further advance of 13⅝ cents a pound today and copper stocks again displayed a strong tone with Kennecott, Utah and American Smelters leading a moderate advance. Sugar stocks were strong and fairly active, with Cuban companies receiving the most attention marketwise. Motors and accessories were sold on profit-taking, and equipments, after further advance under the leadership of Pullman Company, reacted to former price levels. Trading was slow in the fourth hour and confined in general to the speculative favorites sponsored by the pools.

Crossing 86¼ on large transactions, Montgomery Ward today sold at a new high. The reason could not very well have lain in dividend prospects, for there is an accumulation of 21 per cent or more than $4,000,000 in back dividends on the "A" shares which must be got rid of before anything is distributed on the common. Dividends on the "A" stocks were resumed last January after having been suspended for four years. Montgomery Ward's steadily increasing business appears to be the principal basis for the buying of the stock. During the first seven months of the year sales ran $12,400,000 ahead of the same period a year ago. The increase in July amounted to $1,160,000.

Foundation Company was another leader among the specialties, making a new high. This company's business took a remarkable jump in 1923, reaching a total of $23,000,000 against $9,000,000 in 1922. Surplus available for dividends was $10.50 a share against $6, the present rate of payment. Reports of business done so far this year have been favorable. It has just been announced that a contract has been closed involving over $750,000 with the Southern Railway for a locomotive repair shop at Atlanta. The preferred stock passed the 100 mark, being a gain of 6 points since Friday. Foundation Company built the units of the General Electric plant in the Melrose district in East Oakland, the recent additions to the Standard Oil plant in Richmond, and many other big structures about the bay.

After reaching a record-breaking total for the six months ended June 30, the volume of state and municipal bond flotations fell off sharply in July, says The Daily Bond Buyer of New York. Few large cities entered the bond market and there was a marked scarcity of issues of state obligations. A $15,000,000 Pennsylvania state road bond offering, scheduled for sale the latter part of the month, was withdrawn because of a court decision holding the issue to be invalid.

Municipal bond prices have been advancing for several months and the trend of values throughout July was consistently upward. The relative scarcity of new bonds is a factor of importance in this connection.

The following tabulation gives the output of state and municipal bonds in July and the seven months' period ending July 31 for ten years:

	July	Seven mos. end July 31
1924	$ 99,465,638	$922,465,038

An interesting answer to those who believe that the European settlement will have a detrimental effect on American business is furnished in the current bulletin of the Brookmire Economic Service.

Many business men seem to be convinced that the acceptance of the Dawes plan and the settlement of the reparations problem will bring demoralization to American domestic markets and cause a substantial falling off in our foreign trade. The Brookmire Economic Service says in this connection.

"This current argument of the catastropha which is going to happen to us when Europe gets on its feet again seems in the last analysis more or less absurd. If this is true, then it is a logical conclusion that our highest prosperity should come at a period when Europe is entirely disorganized and unable to compete with us at all.

"Europe must have the means of producing goods in quantities and to do that requires both capital in the money sense and capital in goods. In this last group should also be included raw materials. This means her rehabilitation must come from the more prosperous countries, which means practically the United States. We believe that the first movement will be a demand for our capital in all shapes, and that the early stages will effect an increased demand for the products of our industry."

Striking testimony to the strength of the current investment market was offered last week when the sale of $20,000,000 Argentine six months five per cent notes on a 3⅞ per cent basis established a record low rate for short term borrowing by a foreign government. Proceeds from the sale will refund a $20,000,000 issue maturing on August 15.

The response of United States government bonds to the cut in the rediscount rate was immediate, prices bounding up rapidly after the announcement. Trading over the week, however, was marked by erratic and confusing fluctuations. An early advance carried most of the active liberties to the year's highest levels. Failure of the reserve bank to announce a rate reduction on Wednesday brought a sharp reaction, but losses were recovered when the change was made unexpectedly on the following day. The treasury 4¼s crossed 106 to a record high price.

Readjustment of prices in the bonds of railroads to be consolidated by the Van Sweringens with their huge "Nickel Plate" system was based upon terms of exchange as semi-officially announced. Chesapeake and Ohio and Erie convertibles lost ground, but other liens of these roads and of "Nickel Plate" were strengthened by their prospects of becoming underlying issues of a great new system.

A Norwegian loan of $25,000,000 which was oversubscribed, headed the week's list of new bond offerings, which aggregated $95,000,000. Investment bankers said they expected at least $500,000,000 in new financing before the end of the year. Several private loans to German industries are expected to follow flotation of the huge international loan.

Several bearish factors confronted the oil shares today. They were the publication of the report of the California Petroleum Corporation showing net income of $1,758,934 for the first half of this year as against $3,912,317 in the same period of 1923, a cut of 15 cents a barrel in certain grades of Gulf Coast crude oil and the omission of the quarterly dividends on Standard Oil of Kansas, and Atlantic Refining stocks.

BY CONSOLIDATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—In a week replete with interesting incidents from an investment standpoint there was nothing more significant than the advance in sterling exchange to a new high record for the year. Primarily, of course, this advance represented speculative buying based on the favorable outlook of the allied conference in London. The importance to our own financial position, however, goes a great deal further.

For some time now there has been a steady withdrawal of funds from the New York market seeking more profitable employment abroad and it is this phase of the matter which demands the closest attention. As is well known, our banking system is in the strongest position in its history, holding as it does more than half the world's supply of gold. It is upon this excess of the yellow metal that the present extraordinary ease in money rates is founded and this ease in money, in turn, is responsible in a large decree for the strength in industrial securities.

STERLING WATCHED.

The question now arises whether the advance in sterling and the coincident shifting of balances will go far enough to make an impression upon our gold supply. In the nature of the case no exact answer can be given. Economists agree that a turn in the tide of gold which is still coming in would be altogether salutary, but if the immediate result is a tightening of money rates it would remove the chief prop from the investment market and the market of the future is entirely dependent upon the trade situation. There is some reason to believe that the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank were influenced in their decision on Thursday to cut the rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent by a desire to help along the restoration of sterling exchange parity.

The exchange market, however, has still to reckon with British demand, which at this season involves heavy demands for dollars by British importers of American raw materials. The British also are under the necessity of accumulating dollars for payment of interest on the war debt to the United States. These influences would ordinarily cause a reaction in sterling. How far these causes will be overbalanced by the greater relative attractiveness of money rates in London and by the purchase of foreign securities by American investors remains to be seen. It is on this account that the course of sterling exchange during the next thirty days will be so closely watched by those interested in forecasting the future of the American investment market.

EFFECTS NO CHANGE.

As far as the action of the New York Federal Reserve Bank goes the only surprise was that the cut in the interest rate came when it did. Action of this kind had been expected more or less confidently for nearly a month. As a matter of fact, it does not change the money situation at all. It is simply official recognition of a condition which everybody knew existed. It had no particular stimulus upon the bond market except to bring about recovery in Liberties to around the best prices of the year. High grade rails and industrials comparable in rating to investments legal for savings bank did not improve in market prices. On the contrary, holders seem to be more influenced by the desire to exchange securities of this grade for something that would give them a little higher return.

Along with the rise in the exchanges the week has witnessed a remarkable exhibition of confidence in foreign exchange. French bonds made the highest prices seen this year and in some instances have sold at the highest quotations for all times. Dealings were on a very large scale, representing both speculative and investment buying. Other European bonds than the French were favorably affected.

GRAIN AND ROOT CROPS OF STATE ARE ESTIMATED

Corn Doing Better Than Expected: Rice Prospects Also Promising.

Preliminary estimates for the total year's production of these California crops already harvested are the features of main interest in the August report just released by the agricultural statistician. Most crops have shown only small changes in condition during the past month.

Weather Conditions—Day temperatures have been somewhat below normal for the state as a whole, with nights remaining cool. No rains of importance have occurred. While streams supplying irrigation water are extremely low or dry, there has been little change in the water situation affecting agriculture. Little improvement is ever expected during this period. In the mountain ranges stock water supplies are generally unchanged. In many areas the situation is extremely bad while in others water is still available with indications that it will continue until replenished by autumn rains. The dry undergrowth and grass make fire hazards very great. Electric power for irrigation pumping is severely reduced in some valleys.

Indian Corn—The present condition of 85 for Indian corn in California indicates a final production of 3,561,000 bushels. Corn has shown an improvement of 3 points in condition during the past month, which is not quite as great an advance as usually occurs during July.

Wheat—The preliminary estimate of the total production of wheat is 4,770,000 bushels, or 143,114 tons. This estimate is based on 318,000 acres harvested, with an average yield per acre of 15 bushels. This crop is 341,645 tons less than that produced in 1923.

Oats—Likewise a preliminary estimate of the total production of oats has been compiled. The total crop amounts to 1,649,000 bushels, or 26,384 tons. It is estimated that 70,000 acres have or will be harvested for grain. Nearly all oats except in the mountain counties have already been threshed.

Barley — Barley has produced slightly better yields than earlier reports indicated. A preliminary survey of production shows a total for the state of 10,282,000 bushels, or 246,800 tons. This estimate is based on a total harvested area of 604,000 acres. From the standpoint of acres harvested and total production, this is the smallest crop of barley produced in California since 1898. Since 1880 only three crops as small as the one just harvested have been recorded. In 1923 California barley production amounted to 798,800 tons.

Grain Sorghum—The crop reporting board has found the grain sorghum condition to be two points below that of a month ago, which gives promise of a production of 3,010,000 bushels.

Rice—The past month has been only partially favorable to the development of rice. Night temperatures somewhat lower than normal for July have brought about a decline of three points in condition, now estimated to be 87. This is, however, better than at this date last year and only three points below the ten-year average. The forecast is for a crop of 5,011,000 bushels.

Beans—The condition of all field beans in the state has shown a slight decline since July 1, but this decline is less than normally occurs and that may generally be expected during this period of the year. Beans on dry land are very spotted in condition, while the irrigated crop is making excellent progress. The condition of Lima beans is reported at 69 and all other field varieties at 67. The forecast is for 2,059,000 bushels.

Sugar Beets—Sugar beet harvest is in progress or completed throughout the areas of early production. The yield of beets is somewhat better in some of these localities than anticipated, which increases the condition of the total state crop two points. The present condition of 83 promises a total crop of 696,000 tons.

Potatoes—Potatoes show a condition of 84 per cent of a normal which is 10 points lower than a year ago and four points below the ten-year average for this date.

Sweet Potatoes—Sweet potatoes show little change from the report of July 1. The present condition of 76 may be compared to 83 last year and the ten-year average of 90. Should average conditions prevail during the remainder of the season, a crop of 798,000 bushels should be produced. The early sweet potato districts are already shipping to city markets.

Hops—Injury from red spider has been in evidence in some localities. The present condition is 77, which is 2 points below last month. The ten-year average condition at this date is 91. Present prospects indicate a production of 43,000 bales.

Cotton—The condition of the California cotton crop on August 1 was 91 per cent of normal, which is an improvement of one point since July 16. Growing conditions have been excellent. There has been no severe insect injury or excessive heat shedding reported. The entire crop in the United States is rated as 67.4 per cent of a normal on August 1, giving promise of a total production of 12,251,000 bales if the remainder of the season proves favorable. Last year the production was 10,128,478 bales, two years ago 9,761,817, three years ago 7,953,641, and four years ago 13,439,603 bales.

EASTERN MARKETS

CHICAGO, Aug. 11. — Wheat underwent a material setback in price today during the early dealings. Hedging sales against newly harvested wheat were a bearish factor, and so too were reports that frosts in Canada had been too light to damage grain. Upturns in foreign exchange failed to act as an offset. The opening, which ranged from ⅜c decline to ⅝c advance, with September $1.28¼ to $1.28¾ and December $1.28 to $1.38¼, were followed by slight general gains and then by a drop all around to well below Saturday's finish.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat. After opening ⅛ to ⅝c higher, December $1.05¼ to $1.05¾, the corn market turned sharply down grade.

Oats started at ¼c off to ½c up, December 51⅞ to 52c and later showed losses on all deliveries.

Provisions were responsive to grain weakness.

CUBA TO RESUME SERVICE ON RUN TO THE COLUMBIA

Electro-Turbiner Will Sail For Portland With Big List Tomorrow.

The turbo-electric passenger liner Cuba will resume her regular run between San Francisco and Portland tomorrow afternoon when she sails with a large passenger list, according to John W. Chapman, general manager of the New Electra line.

Chapman stated that the demand for tickets and reservations is continuing heavy and that from all indications the heavy travel season in the coastwise trade will run well into the fall months. Freight offerings for the northwest are also increasing, he said, showing that general business conditions are improving.

The Cuba has carried thousands of tourists and vacationists from California to the northwest, and has brought over thousands here to see the wonders of California. She has attained a wide popularity among travelers because of her speed and class. Nearly every trip this season she has arrived and departed with capacity passenger lists. Her lay up was occasioned by propeller and engine trouble experienced on her last run down the coast from Portland.

The columns of height give the elevation of each tide above the plane of reference of the Coast and Geodetic Survey chart soundings, except where the numbers are preceded by the minus sign or dash, when the heights are below.

The rolling sea and the rolling gait of the sailor both promise to be eliminated by the new gyro stabalizer tested out and installed aboard the yacht VANADIS of C. K. G. Billings. The inventor claims by demonstrations to reduce the ordinary ship's roll to three degrees. Picture also shows stabalizer which weighs twelve tons.

ROLLING OF SHIP ELIMINATED BY GYRO STABILIZER

Invention Reduces Motion to Three Degrees; Installed On Yacht Vanadis.

Yo, ho, ho! Three cheers for a life on the rolling sea minus the dreaded mal de mer.

No more will seasick inclined passengers be regaled with various cures, instructions to go to bed immediately upon going aboard, to carry a generous supply of lemons, or to patronize the bar immediately the twelve mile limit is passed, providing that he is still able to get there by that time. For the "mal" has effectually been taken out of the seasick malady and now ocean-going travelers can go about on a deck holding so level that billiards can be played upon it despite the boisterousness of pounding seas but a few yards away. In fact, in the future the roll promises to be confined strictly to the waves and not to the ship in any particular. It may even take away the picturesque rolling gate of the sailor and make him as an ordinary landsman.

The steadiness of decks has been brought about through the invention of a new stabilizer device by Laurence Sperry. The instrument is in reality a large gyroscope, weighing around twelve tons. According to the claims of the inventor and thoroughly proven by tests already made, a ship so equipped will not roll more than three degrees. This is about the same roll as is experienced by a ferry boat crossing San Francisco bay on an ordinary windy day.

The first vessel to be equipped with the new device is the 250 foot yacht Vanadis, owned by C. K. G. Billings, noted millionaire sportsman of southern California. The yacht has just been completed in the Krupp plant in Kiel.

The price is low—$950. If you want the exceptional homesite, tear this out and phone me tomorrow. J. L. Eaton, Lake. 9700.

It is on a paved highway; is bi-sected by a street car line; giving 30 minute service; is only 15 minutes from center of the business district; has electric lights and plenty of water. There is a school on the property and is two miles closer to the heart of town and on the same highway and street car line than one of the best developed subdivisions in the state of California. The land is all level and is very productive. Should have been subdivided years ago. I am willing to sell one-half of my interest for $30,000. If you are interested, write me, Box M106929, Tribune.

GOOD DESIGN ADDS CHARM TO SMALL HOUSE

By
D. M. CROOKS

DESIGNED BY D. M. CROOKS.

The exterior of this little home is decidedly different. The roof lines are somewhat unusual and quite a charm has been obtained in a most attractive and artistic manner by the tieing together of the fireplace chimney and entrance.

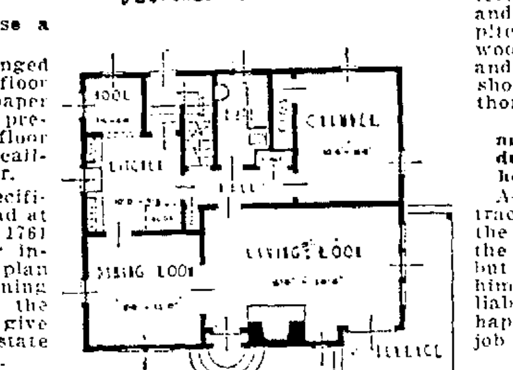

The body of the house has been designed for the use of stucco. The semi-covered terrace adds beauty to the whole scheme, and the house can be made very attractive by the planting of some vine and allowing it to climb over the open pergola rafters.

By placing the fireplace in this particular position and allowing an occasional brick to protrude through the stucco it gives the impression that the house is constructed of brick. Seldom if ever does one see a home with this unique combination of fireplace and entrance used to beautify the exterior and at the same time enhance the interior.

By the use of a high pitch on the roof and a stairs from the rear two very fine rooms may be added on the second floor at a very small expense, thus making a home large enough for a family of four or five people. The chamber on the first floor has been well arranged and the windows are so placed that there is an abundance of light and ventilation.

The sketch of the floor plan has been made to be used in districts where a basement is desired, but the basement stairs may be eliminated and a laundry used in its stead. A great many people prefer a home with a basement, and in this case the laundry is placed in the basement.

The designer has placed this house with several reliable builders on both sides of the bay and it has been found that it can be built at prices ranging from $3500 to $4500, according to the location and the different appointment required. It is rather difficult to quote an absolute contract price on a design as there are many things to consider in building a home that cause a variation in price.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

This home has also been arranged with five rooms on the first floor which will be shown in this paper at a future time. Some people prefer both chambers on the first floor and this plan may be seen by calling at the office of the designer.

Complete blueprints and specifications on this home may be had at the office of D. M. Crooks, 1761 Franklin street, Oakland. Any information with regard to this plan will be cheerfully given, phoning Lakeside 4736, or by writing the above office. In writing kindly give the contour of the ground and state whether basement is to be used.

Questions addressed to Mr. Crooks will appear with the answer in this column the following week. Readers are invited to ask any questions with regard to building, and if a written answer is desired a self-addressed envelope should be enclosed and addressed to 1761 Franklin street, Oakland.

QUESTIONS THAT ARISE IN BUILDING

Q—How can we avoid extras so that our house will not exceed the amount we can afford to pay?

A—The best way to avoid this trouble is to definitely decide on the amount of money that you can afford to spend in a new home. Then have your plans drawn accordingly, having everything that you want in your home stated and set forth both in the plans and specifications. Secondly, employ a contractor of recognized standing, both for his honesty and workmanship.

Q—What causes our floors to squeak?

A—Floor squeaks may be caused by several things, such as improper bridging of the joist, sub-floor improperly nailed, improper insulating or lack of it between the rough and finished floors, or the improper nailing or the use of green finished flooring which in both cases after a short time causes the floor to loosen and squeaks develop.

Q—We have a wax finish over our woodwork and why should dark streaks and spots appear through the wax on the casings and door stiles?

A—This is no doubt caused by your builder using an air-dried material instead of a kiln-dried finish and the heat is causing the natural pitch which still remains in the wood to appear through the filler and wax. For wax finish great care should be exercised in selecting thoroughly kiln-dried materials.

Q—How can I be protected against accidents to workmen during the building of our home?

A—In most specifications and contracts there is a clause compelling the contractor not only to insure the building against loss from fire, but to carry an insurance protecting himself and the owner against the liability of accidents which may happen to workmen while on the job.

Q—How do you make a partition sound-proof?

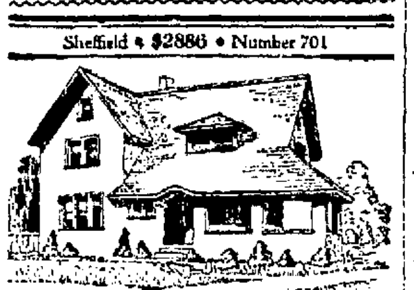

A—This is done most successfully and economically by the use of a staggard partition. To build a staggard partition 2x6 bottom and top plates are used and two rows of studding are used, one on each side of the plates so that they alternate and that when lathed and plastered there is no direct connection between the two surfaces of the partition. By using this type of partition, sound vibrations are not conducted by means of direct contact.

"ASK THE ENVELOPE" AND KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT HOWARD USED CARS
From the standpoint of downright economy a REBUILT Buick is the most practical investment a man can make. The price depreciation the first year is about 25% less than a new car. The service depreciation is less than 10% and when we recondition the car as we always do, it is practically as good as when it left the factory. Add to this the value of additional accessories for which we make no extra charges—and the final figures indicate a most substantial saving in favor of the USED CAR. Get the thrift habit—BUY A USED BUICK TODAY.

WIDOW SUING VOLLMER DISAPPEARS

Chief's Accuser Vanishes After Attempted Suicide Former Wife Leaves On "Extended Camping Trip"

Developments today in the situation growing out of the recent filing of Mrs. Charlotte M. Lex' $50,000 suit alleging breach of promise on the part of Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley were:

Mrs. Lex had fully recovered from an attempt made yesterday to end her life with gas and poison.

While Los Angeles police were investigating the attempt of suicide, Mrs. Lex disappeared. She told friends she intended "to go north" and is believed to be on her way to Berkeley or San Francisco.

Lydia Sturtevant, operatic prima donna and divorced wife of Vollmer, who, according to Mrs. Lex, is to be called as a witness for the latter when the breach of promise suit comes up for trial, was said to be on an extended camping trip in the high Sierra, having left Berkeley last Friday.

Chief Vollmer, on the advice of his attorney, refused to make any further statements for publication.

Mrs. Lex today was declared to be "none the worse" for what she said was an attempt to commit suicide yesterday in her apartment at 1231 North Orange Drive, Los Angeles.

TAKES POISON.

She told police detectives that she had tried to "end it all" because Chief Vollmer had "made life unbearable" for her by things he had said about her since she started the suit.

She deliberately took an overdose of sleeping powder containing 40 grains of poison, she said, and then turned on the gas. The experience was so painful, however, that when she became partially asphyxiated, she changed her mind, she said, and attempted to summon a physician by telephone. The telephone girl notified the police. When the police arrived at Mrs. Lex' apartment they found an odor of gas in the room, they reported, but the jet was turned off.

LIFE THREATENED.

The fact that Chief Vollmer had publicly intimated that she was responsible for the suicide of her second husband, and that she had driven another man, John Maxwell, insane, had been too much for her to bear, she told the police. She also said that she had been "shadowed" and that her life had been treatened in several mysterious telephone messages, since she started the breach of promise suit, and that she had finally decided to give up.

"And there is another thing," she said, "that I could not reveal until now. It is a hard thing for a woman to face the possibility of bringing a child into the world without a name or a father. That is the situation in which I am left. I thought the overdose would take two of us, perhaps, out of life that could hold but little for a mother and an unborn child."

PASTOR TESTIFIES.

Dr. C. A. Briegleb, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Los Angeles, told his congregation last night, according to despatches from the south, that Mrs. Lex had confided in him on July 20.

"For myself, I still believe in Vollmer," said Dr. Briegleb. "I shall wait until all the evidence is in."

Vollmer's divorced wife, who, as Lydia Sturtevant is well known on the operatic stage in Europe and America, has so far made no answer to the assertions of Mrs. Lex that she would be called to testify against Vollmer in the breach of promise suit.

Mrs. Lex, it is declared, called on Miss Sturtevant at the latter's home in Berkeley before filing the breach of promise suit.

4824 Tee Off on Municipal Links Says July Report

The municipal golf links was graced by the presence of 4824 players, including about a dozen golfers, during July, according to a report to the city recreation department today, showing that the Lake Chabot course had one of the most prosperous months of its career.

As one of the evidences of prosperity, the players purchased $561.95 worth of golf balls during the month, or more than 1000 balls, which took the place of balls which went over the fence and hid in the brush. Recreation officials believe that the fields around the links now are fairly well paved with golf balls, except for those discovered by enterprising small boys.

The report showed that 1421 membership players used the course, while 3403 itinerants paid their "per day" fee. There were 100 lessons given during the month by Professor Fred X. Fry, whose main income, however, came through the sale of golf balls.

Last Sunday was one of the record days at the course, with 421 customers.

Alamedans Invited To Big Beach Party

An invitation to the residents of Alameda to a beach party and social Friday evening, August 15, at Neptune Beach, has been issued by R. C. Strehlow, president and general manager of the Bayside Park. Every department of the big pleasure resort will be free to the visitors, including refreshments.

A ball in the beach pavilion will be the feature of the evening. As the Dons of Peralta Governor for Alameda, Strehlow has invited the Dons and Donnas of the six other cities interested in the Ohapesla movement. Five-minute talks, vocal and instrumental numbers will be given in the intervals between dances.

Two Thugs Routed in Battle Over Watch

Kenneth Cameron of 9605 East Fourteenth street, surprised by two footpads who waylaid him in San Francisco early today, was able to offer little opposition when they went through his pockets, taking $35. When, however, they sought to steal his gold watch which he treasures for sentimental reasons, he put up a battle and succeeded in recovering the timepiece. The holdup occurred on Kearny street, near Pine. Cameron's face was badly cut and bruised in the fight. He was treated at the harbor emergeny hospital.

POLICEMAN WHO HIT BOY SUSPENDED

Patrolman Tyrrell Charged With Knocking Out Youth's Teeth: Officer Says His Victim Laughed at Him

Policeman S. R. Tyrrell is under suspension from the police force today, pending an investigation by Chief of Police James T. Drew into charges that Tyrrell struck 17-year-old Thomas Craig, nephew of Mrs. J. Early Craig of 6109 Harwood court, because he thought the youth had laughed at him.

The force of the blow, which was administered in the presence of Craig's cousins, Marie Ruth Craig, 16, and Walter, 15, is said to have knocked out one of the boy's teeth, partially dislocated his jaw, and to have sent him sprawling on the lawn of his aunt's home.

Craig, who is the son of George W. Craig, an attorney of Porterville, came here recently to enter the University of California, and has been living at the home of his aunt. Saturday night, accompanied by Mrs. Craig's son and daughter, he drove his father to the train, and had just driven into the driveway at the Craig home on his return when Tyrrell approached him.

"You'll laugh at me, will you?" Tyrrell is reported to have said. Then, it is declared, he struck Craig in the face, knocking him down.

Tyrrell explained afterward that he thought Craig had tried to run him down with the automobile on the way along the street, and then laughed at him. Craig declared he had not seen Tyrrell before the latter accosted him and struck him.

Lieutenant Bert Curtis of the Northern police station investigated the case yesterday, after which he suspended Tyrrell from the police force. A further investigation is to be held by Chief Drew to determine whether the policeman is to be reinstated or dismissed.

Bad Check Charge In Divorce Denied

Through an error due to confusion in names, a report was printed Sunday to the effect that Mrs. Daisy V. Downs, suing her husband, Bert Lee Downs, for divorce, had charged him with the issuance of fictitious checks. Such a charge was not made by Mrs. Downs. In her complaint, she alleged that Downs had associated with other women, that he had choked her and attempted to throw her from a moving automobile and that on another occasion he had knocked her down. There was no mention whatever of fictitious checks or of any fraudulent operations by Downs in her complaint.

CALIFORNIA DETECTIVES TO CONVENE

State Division of International Identification Body to Hold Meet in Oakland | Mayor to Extend Welcome

The ninth annual convention of the California division of the International Association for Identification will be held at the Hotel Oakland Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week, with Harry H. Caldwell, president of the association and chief of the Oakland bureau of identification, presiding.

The program for the three days includes addresses and demonstrations concerning traffic problems, radio, and recent "lie" detector devices, given by prominent police leaders of the state.

Mayor John L. Davie, Commissioner Frank Colbourn and Chief of Police James T. Drew will deliver addresses of welcome at the opening session Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The remainder of that session will be devoted to reports of the officers and the seating of the delegates.

U. C. SAVANT TO SPEAK.

The afternoon session will be featured by an address by Professor Albert Schneider, dean of the U. C. police school and the school of pharmacy of the North Pacific College at Portland, Ore., who will speak on "A Critical Review of the Newer Apparatus Employed in Securing Evidence"; a demonstration of the newest "lie detector" by its inventor, Leonard Keeler of the University of Southern California, and an address by Lieutenant Charles L. Hemphill of the Oakland police traffic force on "City Traffic Problems."

In the evening a public session of the convention will hear an address by Clarence Morrill, superintendent of the state bureau of identification on the work of that department through the past year. Other delegates will give short talks.

LECTURE ON I. W. W.

Frederick R. Wedge, teaching fellow of the University of California, will talk to the convention Thursday morning on the I. W. W. In the afternoon the following addresses are on the program: "Evidence and Legal Questions in Criminal Cases" by Professor A. M. Kidd of the school of jurisprudence of the University of California.

Friday morning the business session of the convention and the election of officers will be held. The delegates will be the guests of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce on an automobile ride of the Eastbay in the afternoon and the guests of the Oakland police department at a dinner at the Hotel Oakland in the evening.

N. Y. Catsup King Accused By S. F. Woman in Suit

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Stripped of the riches she has enjoyed and evicted from her palatial apartment in New York, Mrs. Muriel Buell, 27, former San Francisco society girl, has told the story of her two years' acquaintance with Jefferson Livingston, racehorse owner and catsup king, and the reason for her suit against him.

"Livingston," the pretty divorcee said, "is 63 years old and has an income of $700,000 a year on his investments. He has always represented himself as a bachelor. He promised to marry me at one time, and later, when I sued him for breach of promise, he agreed to pay me $1750 a month for life if I would drop the suit."

Mrs. Buell quoted Livingston as frequently saying:

"A woman is like a racehorse. Both have a few good years. Those are the years I want. After I have had the good years I am willing to let some one else have the rest."

Mrs. Buell's first husband was Richard Cables, a wealthy boy of El Paso, with whom she eloped when 17 years old. She divorced him three years later.

U. C. Extension to Give French Courses

A practical knowledge of French for reading and speaking is the object of three courses in that language to be given by G. Z. Patrick, assistant professor in French and Russian at the University of California, through the university extension. The classes will begin Thursday, September 4, at the extension center, Room 303, 1512 Franklin street.

CLUES HOLD JANITOR IN MURDER NET

Accounts of Suspects' Movements Given to Police Have Proven Unsatisfactory When Checked Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Henry MacDonald, former janitor at the Harriet Flick apartment house, where Miss Andrietta Hildebrand, "butterfly girl," was murdered, became the principal figure today in the hunt for her slayer.

Police learned that MacDonald paced the floor of his room last Thursday and Friday nights, leaving at intervals, and occasionally throwing himself on the bed for a few moments' rest.

A knife stained with what police believe to be blood was found in his room, and is now undergoing chemical analysis.

Accounts of his movements, which the police say are unsatisfactory, have been given by MacDonald the night of the murder and the day following, which ended with the discovery of the body by William F. De Lucca, another suspect, officers declared.

The former janitor has admitted improper conduct with the girl, according to the police.

Wire Link With East Threatened By Fire

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

RENO, Nev., Aug. 11. — Transcontinental telegraph and telephone wires were threatened by a forest fire near Flesich, west of here, today. Several times during the morning the fire caused failure of the wires but repairs were made quickly. The fire started at Floriston, Cal., two weeks ago and early today leaped across the Truckee river and Southern Pacific tracks near Flesich.

Portuguese Globe Fliers Leave Oakland Tomorrow

The three Portuguese world fliers, who arrived in San Francisco on the steamer H. F. Alexander and who are en route to their native land following the abandonment of their attempt to fly around the globe, will leave Oakland pier tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. for Boston. They are Majors Antonio Dias and Jose deBieres, and Lieutenant Jose Gouveia. They have been extensively feted in the Bay district since their arrival.

The reception committee which will meet the party at the pier on its arrival from San Francisco, is headed by Judge John G. Mattos Jr., of Centerville.

The aviators plan to spend two or three days in the New England states and will go from there to New York, where they will sail for England and thence proceed home.
